Counsels Prayer In His Address Lighting Community Christmas Tree

(Mr. Truman's Text, Page 2)

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

President Truman said in his Christmas Eve broadcast last night that democracy's greatest weapon is faith—"faith in one's self, faith in one's neighbors, faith in God"—and "not a gun, a tank or a bomb."

The Chief Executive called on the Nation to "pray at this Christmas time for the wisdom, the humility, and the courage to carry on in this faith."

He said in his message, heard as part of the White House ceremonies in the lighting of the National Community Christmas Tree:

"We are all joined in the fight against the tyranny of communism. Communism is Godless. Democracy is the foundation of faith . . ."

Special Services Scheduled

The Nation, he said, "already is in the midst of a crusade of prayer. On the last Sunday of the old year, there will be special services devoted to a revival of faith in God.

"I call upon all of you to enlist in this common cause. I call upon you no matter what your spiritual allegiance may be."

Mr. Truman said that "never before in our lives" has a Christmas seemed so important.

"I am not thinking of turkey dinners and stacks of gifts. I mean the quiet, reverent celebration of the faith, hope and love—born in a manger in Bethlehem."

"Many of us are fortunate enough to celebrate Christmas at our own fireside," the President reminded the country. "But there are many others who are away from their homes and loved ones on this day. Thousands of our boys are on the cold and dreary battlefield of Korea."

Mr. Truman recorded his talk before leaving Washington last Friday for Independence, Mo., and

'Curtain' Country Effort to Ease Tension Reported

Assistant Secretary of State Edward W. Barrett said yesterday a "certain individual" in the ruling councils of an Iron Curtain country is "struggling to lessen tensions" between Communist countries and the West.

Barrett, director of the Voice of America program, made the statement on the NBC television show, American Forum of the Air. He joined officials of the National Conference of Christians and Jews in a discussion of "Brotherhood for Peace."

Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, conference president, commented that many Chinese are not sympathetic to communism and said the same must be true of other Communist-ruled nations. He asked Barrett whether there were any persons among the ruling classes of Russia or Soviet-controlled states who really are working for peace and brotherhood.

Barrett said he knew of one "certain individual behind the Iron Curtain who is struggling to lessen" East-West tension. He said this person has visited in the United States and other democratic countries and liked what he saw.

Avenue in NE May Become 6-Lane Road

District Would Use Kenilworth Ave. as Expressway Link

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The District is planning to turn Kenilworth ave. ne. into a controlled-access six-lane divided highway to speed traffic to the new Baltimore-Washington Expressway from the proposed East Capitol st. bridge.

A plan for the big job is expected to be ready for the District Commissioners about February 1. A preliminary layout on the bridge and its approaches is due in mid-January from the J. E. Greiner Co., engineering firm hired by the city.

District Street Engineer Samuel R. Harrison said preliminary Kenilworth ave. plans call for closing off access from many of the streets now opening into the avenue. There probably will be only six or eight points of access between the District line and Benning rd.

A service road or roads paralleling Kenilworth ave. will be built to bring traffic from the other streets to the access points. However, Harrison said, it will be necessary to have stoplights on Kenilworth at these points, thus preventing the avenue from becoming a true high-speed throughway.

Exact location of the proposed East Capitol st. bridge is still to be determined by the Greiner engineers, a spokesman for the firm said. He expects there will be an underpass at Benning rd. and a complete new route alongside the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks between Benning rd. and the new bridge.

Harrison said there are no current plans to continue the Kenilworth route to connect with the Anacostia pkwy. at Pennsylvania

2 Die in Blaze At N. Laurel; Five Escape

Two persons were fatally burned, two houses were destroyed, and a third house damaged in fires in nearby Maryland Saturday night and early yesterday.

Victims of a fire that destroyed a one-story, three-room frame house in North Laurel at 1:20 a. m. yesterday were identified by State police as Bruce Donald Kelly, 28, and Ada Sue Kelly, age unknown.

State police said a woman and four children in the same building, who have not yet been identified, escaped the blaze without injury. Police are investigating the fire, which they said may have been caused by an oil stove.

A fire at 10:15 p. m. Saturday, at the home of Mrs. Ellen Phillips, 4511 Roxbury rd., Kensington, caused about $5000 damage to the large rambler type house. Billy Dennis, 22, of the Kensington Fire Department, suffered a burned hand while fighting the blaze.

Another fire at 9 a. m. yesterday destroyed the two-story frame home of the Rev. Linwood Rollins, on Route 4, two miles north of Marlboro. Cause of the fire, according to police, was an exploding oil stove in the kitchen on the first floor.

Service Clubs To Lose 200 Slot Machines

Bill Would Require Removal; Maryland To Need New Law

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The national slot machine bill, now awaiting the President's signature, will force the removel of an estimated 200 "one-armed bandits" from officers' and enlisted men's clubs in the Washington area.

The bill also will necessitate passage of special legislation by the Maryland General Assembly at its forthcoming session if the machines are to continue operation in the four Maryland counties where they are legal.

The national measure bars shipment of the slot machines into any state where they are illegal and also bans possession and use of the machines in the District and any Federal reservation, such as military posts and naval posts.

Both the District and Virginia already bar slot machines except on military bases.

A survey of nearby military installations and checks at the Pentagon yesterday disclosed deep concern over the expected impact of the measure.

"The ban will force many, many officers' clubs to close," one high Pentagon official said.

Asphyxia Believed Cause

Attorney Collapses and Dies In Sealed Home; Wife Recovers

A retired Justice Department attorney collapsed and died yesterday in his tightly sealed home—possibly, police said, from lack of oxygen. His wife also collapsed but was revived.

Police started an immediate investigation. The husband, David H. King, 58, of 3636 T st. nw., was pronounced dead at his home at 12:46 p. m., about five hours after he first collapsed, apparently the victim of asphyxia.

His wife, Beulah, 56, who was found unconscious, was taken to Georgetown University Hospital, where she was reported in good condition last night.

Police said there was no evidence of any gas leakages in the house. All windows and doors in the six-room two-story row house were tightly sealed with newspapers, which probably produced an oxygen deficiency, they added. Gas heating appliances also helped to deplete the oxygen supply, police believe.

The Kings had been unconscious intermittently throughout the morning, investigators said.

Police gave this account of the morning's strange events:

The Kings were in the kitchen, starting breakfast at 7 a. m., when Mrs. King became ill and lapsed into unconsciousness. Her husband carried her into the living room and placed her on the sofa. Then he collapsed.

Several hours later, the wife regained consciousness and made her way to the telephone in the same room. She dialed the number of their physician, Dr. James A. Gannon, jr.

Dr. Gannon was out making calls. His wife answered the telephone. Alarmed by the halting manner in which Mrs. King was talking, Mrs. Gannon advised her

Army Offices Will Hire 2950 Here

Funds Already Voted For World-Wide Employment of 133,325 Civilians

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The Army plans to hire 2950 additional civilians at headquarters here before next June 30 and funds to pay them have been okayed by Congress. The proposed increase would boost Army's civilian staff here to 17,362.

This is an agency by agency breakdown of the proposed expansion:

Chief of Staff's Office, 291 new employes; Adjutant General, 1156; Inspector General, 4; Finance Office, 79; Judge Advocate General, 15; Quartermaster General, 450; Transportation, 69; Signal Corps, 154; Provost Marshal General, 27; Medical, 213; Engineers, 159; Ordnance, 229; Chemical, 100, and Chaplains, 4. No increase is slated for the Secretary's office.

The world-over, the Army will hire an estimated 133,325 more civilians before next June 30, including the 2950 at headquarters here. The Army expects to have 528,905 civilians in its employ on that date. A breakdown of the huge increase, agency by agency, follows:

Finance Service, 5260; Quartermaster Service, 6457; Transportation Service, 10,156; Signal Service, 11,413; Medical and Hospital Department, 1573; Engineer Service, 14,793; Military Construction, 12,598; Ordnance Service and Supplies, 64,324; Chemical Service, 3536; Army training, 696; Military Academy, 23; Organized Reserves, 429, and finally, the 2950 at Army headquarters here.

Nearly half of the increase will be in Ordnance, the agency charged with producing guns and ammunition.

Other Hiring Planned

In addition to the 2950 new employes slated at headquarters here, several thousand other civilians will be hired by nearby Army installations such as Ft. Belvoir, Ft. Meade, Ft. Myer, the Army Medical Center, the Military District of Washington, and so forth.

Despite the large overall increase in Army civilians, the military is increasing at an even faster pace. The expansion plans call for a ratio of approximately 41.8 percent of civilians to military in the Army. The Army is now operating at a 43 percent ratio, and at one time it was as high as 50 percent.

When members of Congress questioned the proposed big increase in civilian personnel, Maj. Gen. G. H. Decker told them that the Army's manufacture of guns,

Housewives' Problem

Social Security Law to Cover Million Domestics January 1

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

(Second of a Series)

The new Social Security law will reach into the Nation's homes next week as a million household workers become eligible for old-age and survivor insurance.

These workers will be drawn into the Government-operated program for the first time on January 1.

Included in their ranks are maids, laundresses, housekeepers, cooks, nursemaids, gardeners, furnace men, handymen, valets, footmen, grooms and chauffeurs of privately owned cars.

One of the first effects will be to set housewives applying the "$50-24 day" test to determine whether their workers are covered. Here is how the test works:

1. Did your employe receive at least $50 in cash wages in a three-month period from your household?

2. Did he or she work at least 24 days during the period?

If the answer is "Yes" to both questions, you are expected to deduct 1½ percent from the worker's cash wages for Social Security taxes. If either question is answered "No," the employe is not eligible for Social Security.

The three-month periods used for the test start in January, April, July, or October. Payments are due in the month following each of these three-month periods.

Payment may be made by the housewife on a special household report form obtainable from the Collector of Internal Revenue at Baltimore (for Maryland and District residents) or Richmond (for Virginia residents).

The employer is required to withhold 1½ percent of the cash wages and match this with an equal amount. The employer may elect to pay the entire 3 percent.

Here are some typical housewife problems:

Q. I have a cleaning girl who comes in once a week. Should I collect the tax?

A. No. She is not eligible unless she works for a single employer at least 24 days in a calendar quarter.

Q. I have a maid who works a half-day two days a week. Is she covered?

A. Yes, if she earns at least $50 in a calendar quarter. She need not work a full day on each of 24 days to be covered.

Q. Are board and room considered part of wages in computing the tax?

A. No, only wages paid in cash. Carfare may be counted if paid in cash, but not if it is provided in the form of tokens or a pass.

Q. What does the maid have to do about the tax?

A. The maid must get a social security number. Applications are available at all postoffices or at the Social Security field offices at

Wounded Washington Marine Just Drops in From War Front

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

Pfc. William K. Lowry surprises mother . . .

Some of them made it home yesterday — home in time for Christmas.

There were the 102 men of Washington's 163d Military Police Battalion — furloughed from Fort Custer, Battle Creek, Mich., and too busy for such things as interviews.

And there was 20-year-old Marine Pfc. William K. Lowry—back from Korea, and too excited, at first, for explanations.

For that matter, Lowry's mother was too excited to ask for any.

"He called us from San Francisco on Monday and said he was wounded, but we didn't expect this," said Mrs. Thelma Lowry of 1006 F st. ne. last night.

St. Peter's Holy Door Sealed By Pope, Ending Jubilee Year

ROME, Dec. 24 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XII cemented three gilded bricks into the holy door of St. Peter's basilica today to end the 1950 jubilee, the greatest Holy Year celebration in Roman Catholic history.

Mors than 100,000 persons were present for the final ceremony of the 365-day jubilee that opened last Christmas Eve as "the year of the great return and the great pardon."

As he was the first to enter the holy door last year, Pope Pius was the last through it today. He passed through for the last time at 11:28 a. m. (5:28 a. m. EST), preserving 650 years of tradition, which began with the present cycle of Holy Year celebrations in 1300.

The closing ceremony lasted one hour and forty-five minutes at St. Peter's. Simultaneously, identical rituals at the basilicas of St. Mary Major, St. John in Lateran and St. Paul's Outside the Walls sealed the holy doors there until the jubilee of 1975—unless a special Holy Year is decreed.

Removing his miter, the Pope stepped down from a special throne outside the portal and sprinkled the gilded bricks and a silver bucket of mortar with holy water. He wore a special white linen apron.

As a hush fell over the crowd inside and outside St. Peter's, he knelt before the holy door and accepted the golden trowel from Nicola Cardinal Canali and scooped up the first bit of mortar.

He dropped the mortar at the left-hand corner of the threshold and, lying one brick, said:

"We place this first brick to close the Holy Door, which will be opened in every jubilee year."

At that moment, the Holy Year ended.

The Pontiff then laid two more

Marshall Plan May Be Ended Next June 30

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Marshall Plan, as a name and an entity, may terminate next June 30, a year before its allotted time. If so, the intent is to replace it with a program for economic support to western Europe that would be keyed to defense progress and new burdens.

Plans for this change are now taking shape within the Administration, to be presented to Congress next year. Details are not yet worked out, nor is even the administrative form decided upon.

Present thinking of top Government officials concerned with European aid favors a merger, in a single appropriation pool, of what are now two separate funds. One is that of the Economic Cooperation Administration, and the other is the direct dollar aid—as distinct from the finished munitions—in the Mutual Defense Assistance Program.

The statutory limitations in the present ECA and MDAP laws make it difficult, if not impossible, to give offsetting aid to Europe for the so-called "indirect

Nonpartisan Editorial

Pravda Pins Warmonger Tag On Hoover, Just as on Truman

MOSCOW, Dec. 24 (AP).—Pravda called Herbert Hoover a warmonger today in the same terms it recently applied to President Truman.

An editorial in the Communist Party organ said the policy proposed by Hoover—to pull back into a Western Hemisphere defense bastion—was a policy of "aggression and war." The former President is "obviously interested not in peace but in war," the editorial went on, because he considers it possible and necessary to establish American dominance in the Pacific and Atlantic.

At the same time, Pravda said a recent Hoover speech proves that President Truman is unable to lead American public opinion by his proclamation of a national emergency and that there is no basis of fact in his affirmation that his policy is bipartisan.

President Truman, the editorial said, "did not attain his goal and did not achieve the desired effect."

The editorial followed yesterday's publication by Pravda of the entire text of the Hoover radio speech of December 20. The speech is being treated in the Soviet Union as having greater significance than President Truman's declaration of a national emergency.

Russians can read into this treatment of the Hoover speech that the American Administration has failed dismally in Korea and that the immense military might of the U.S.S.R. and its allies cannot be defeated on the continents of Europe and Asia.

Pravda said that though Hoover's policy is one of an "aggressor and imperialist," his admissions on "the failure of the present course of United States policy sound completely convincing."

Reds Force Allies From Korangpo, Only 28 Miles North of Capital

TOKYO (Monday), Dec. 25 (AP). — Chinese Red hordes stepped up their pressure today near Korea's thirty-eighth parallel and the South Korean National Assembly began moving out of the threatened capital city of Seoul.

(In Washington, the Defense Department announced that the United States Tenth Corps has completed the sea evacuation of Hungnam. That left all northeast Korea in Red hands. The last Allied toehold was at the port of Hungnam.)

(News of the successful removal of U. N. troops from the Communist-beleaguered beachhead came in a special dispatch from the United States aircraft carrier Philippine Sea in Korea waters.

(This dispatch said: "A few miles away tonight the last remnants of the gallant U. N. forces from northeast Korea have been evacuated from the Hamhung (Hungnam) beachhead."

(Secretary of the Army Pace and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, promptly messaged their congratulations to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the U. N. forces in Korea, for the successful evacuation of troops.

The dispatch from the Philippine Sea said:

"Tired, begrimed fighting men who have blasted a page of glory into the history of combat look up in the bright Korean night and suddenly realize that this is Christmas Eve."

General Collins told MacArthur:

("The news of the completion of the operations at Hungnam is particularly welcomed at Christmas time. It brings relief and cheer to us all."

(Collins called the evacuation a "brilliant" job.)

On advice of President Syngman Rhee, the Assembly began moving to a southeast Korean port. The cabinet was to remain in Seoul for the time being. Rhee advised all nonessential government bureaus to leave.

Many civilians already have fled the city. Refugees jammed the docks at Inchon, port for Seoul.

Communist pressure forced United Nations troops to evacuate Korangpo, 28 miles northwest of Seoul and 1 mile south of the Paarllel.

The Red pressure was stepped up on the left or seaward flank

Police Give $5 To Woman After Groceries Theft

There is more to policemen than a gruff voice and traffic tickets. Mrs. Dorothy Hayden, of 121 Bates st. nw., called the police press room yesterday to report on the softer side.

The caller's daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Magruder, 24, of 139 Grant ave., Takoma Park, Md., had just spent her last $23 for Christmas groceries Friday night.

During a visit to her mother someone broke into Mrs. Magruder's car and made off with the groceries. She hadn't enough money left to buy milk for her two small children.

All this was reported to Pvts. Bernard P. Stepanek and Charles A. Dabbs of the Second Precinct Station. Stepanek and Dabbs wrote it down, left $5 with Mrs. Magruder and returned to duty.

Vandenberg Says He'll Be Back Here After Few Weeks

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 24 (AP).—The ailing Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican champion of a bipartisan foreign policy, said today he hopes to return to Washington in a few more weeks.

"His doctors," said a statement, "report such good progress from his recent setback they wish to postpone his return to Washington for a few more weeks. This course will be followed."

Yule Bells Jingle With Drums of War

Children Stare

'Late' Sleep Delays Walk By Truman

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Dec. 24 (U.P.). — President Truman, like many other Americans, slept late—late for him, that is—on this Christmas Eve Sunday, then rose and took his usual morning walk.

The President, who usually rises around 6 a. m. and takes a stroll about 7 o'clock, slept late for the second successive morning on his holiday visit at his home here.

Mr. Truman strolled out of the side gate of the temporary White House at 8 a. m. and took a brisk 25-minute walk for about a mile and a half.

He waved greetings to several neighbors and stopped at a filling station operated by an old friend, Ray Wills, but Wills wasn't there.

The President chuckled when two children stared in awe at his escort of Secret Service men, reporters and photographers. The children apparently didn't recognize the President.

He traversed 16 blocks, then disappeared into the quiet home.

Early in the afternoon he motored to Grandview to dedicate the new home of the Grandview Baptist Church. He's been a member of that congregation since 1916. Members of his family have belonged to the Grandview congregation throughout much of its 100 years of existence.

As he left the new church, Mr. Truman said he "hopes it will be possible to erect a fine country Masonic lodge" on the site of the ould church about a mile away.

By The Associated Press

The spirit of Christmas triumphed, if only for a brief holiday, over the fears of a war-threatened world on the eve of the birthday of the Prince of Peace.

In Bethlehem of Judea, scene of the first Christmas, clergymen and laymen from many lands knelt Sunday before the manger, traditional place of Christ's birth, in the Church of the Nativity. Some 800 pilgrims, more than in any recent years, made the trip from the Jewish part of Jerusalem to Bethlehem for the services. Among them was Harold E. Stassen, U. S. Republican leader and president of the University of Pennsylvania, who is making a tour through the Far East.

Thousands of miles across the globe, in the little city of Independence, Mo., President Truman lighted by remote control his Nation's Christmas tree on the grounds of the White House in Washington. He asked the people of America to renew their faith in God and pray for a righteous peace.

In the Far East, already torn by war on several fronts, Christmas Eve observance was austere. The civilian population of war-ravaged Seoul, Korea, facing the gravest threat of Communist aggression to any world capital, went ahead with their plans to celebrate the birth of Christ. American troops those in the front lines as well as those in rear echelon units, were to have an opportunity to attend services, with 42 Catholic priests and double that number of Protestants with American forces in the war theater.

South Korean President Syngman Rhee told the United Nations troops facing the menacing Red hordes that their spirits were high because they knew "that in fighting here so far from home you fight not only for us and our freedom but for the freedom of each of your countries."

There was some forced gayety among Americans celebrating the Yuletide in Tokyo. They tried to forget they were an ocean away from home. Some of them were convalescing in a military hospital from wounds suffered in Korea.

On controversial Formosa, Nationalist Chinese, many of them Christians, were more hopeful this year than last; they saw some probability of their return to the Chinese mainland, now held by their Red Chinese foes.

Reports from British Hongkong indicated the Red Chinese, in the vast areas they control, are trying to eradicate Christmas along with other Christian influences from the land.

On Kwajalein, mid-Pacific atoll of World War II fame, a midnight service was held for 200 American military personnel and their dependents.

In Moscow, the heart of world communism, only the foreign colony observed Christmas Eve. The main celebration for the American colony was at the United States Embassy. Russian Orthodox Christmas does not come until January 7.

The people of Communist-governed Czechoslovakia celebrated the occasion by staying at home. Many broke day-long fasts with traditional suppers of carp, off the ration list this year for the first time since before World War II. Government officials managed to tie in Christmas with Soviet-backed peace proposals.

Text of Truman's Address

Text of President Truman's address in connection with the National Community Christmas Tree ceremony:

All over our country and in many other parts of the world, men, women and children are preparing to celebrate the birthday of Christ.

Never before in our lives has a Christmas seemed so important. I am not thinking of turkey dinners and stacks of gifts. I mean the quiet, reverent celebration of the faith, hope and love — born in a manger in Bethlehem.

Across all the continents of this world, peace-loving people today feel apprehension and loneliness and fear.

Many have forgotten the humble surroundings of the Nativity and how, from a straw-littered stable, shone a light which, for nearly 20 centuries, has given men strength, comfort and peace.

At this Christmas time we should renew our faith in God. We celebrate the hour in which God came to men. It is fitting that we should turn to Him.

Many of us are fortunate enough to celebrate Christmas at our own fireside.

But there are many others who are away from their homes and loved ones on this day. Thousands of our boys are on the cold and dreary battlefield of Korea.

But all of us—at home, at war, wherever we may be—are within reach of God's love and power. We all can pray. All of us should pray.

We should ask the fulfillment of God's will. We should ask for courage, wisdom, for the quietness of soul which comes along to them who place their lives in His hands.

We should pray for a peace which is based on righteousness.

The Nation already is in the midst of a Crusade of Prayer. On the last Sunday of the old year, there will be special services devoted to a revival of faith in God.

I call upon all of you to enlist in this common cause. I call upon you no matter what your spiritual allegience may be.

We are all joined in the fight against the tyranny of communism. Communism is Godless. Democracy is the harvest of faith—faith in one's self, faith in one's neighbors, faith in God.

Democracy's most powerful weapon is not a gun, a tank, or a bomb. It is faith—faith in the brotherhood and dignity of man under God.

Let us pray at this Christmas time for the wisdom, the humility, and the courage to carry on in this faith.

Christmas at home with his family.

At 5:15 p. m. he pressed a key in Independence that lit the tree on the south lawn of the White House.

On hand to witness the ceremony—the 28th annual White House tree lighting—were more than 3000 people.

Because of strict security regulations, the public was not allowed on the south lawn. They heard music by the United States Marine Band and Christmas songs by the American University Chorus. Invocation was by the Rev. Clarence W. Cranford, president of the Washington Federation of Churches; benediction was by the Very Rev. John S. Spence, director of education of the Catholic Archdiocese of Washington.

After remarks by Melvin D. Hildreth, executive vice chairman of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, two young Scouts gave greetings to President and Mrs. Truman.

Patricia Rogers, of Troop 233, declared: "We hope that the radiance from this National Christmas tree will bring light to the hearts of all people everywhere . . . To you and all your family we bring friendly Christmas wishes."

Said Theodore E. Schimpff, Eagle Scout of Troop 228: "Mr. President, I have the honor to bring you greetings from the people of Washington and from all the boys of the Nation.

"On this Christmas eve," young Ted continued, "the world is still striving for peace—peace on earth and goodwill toward all men. We are proud, Mr. President, that our country is dedicated to this great cause. We stand firmly and willingly behind this enormous program and know that righteousness and justice, being on our side, will prevail.

"We acknowledge our responsibilities as citizens and will do our best to help our country at all times.

"On behalf of the boys of the Nation today—the men of tomorrow—I bring you, Mr. President, best wishes for a very merry Christmas and a happy, joyful and successful New Year."

Weather Turns Cool

The weather turned suddenly cool during the hour-long ceremonies. Scattered rain earlier in the day made the White House lawn muddy.

But the skies began clearing towards late afternoon.

The Weather Bureau predicted a fair, rather windy and cold Christmas Day with a high about the freezing point.

Yesterday afternoon's high was an unseasonal 59 degrees—no record by any means—but the temperature was due to drop to a chilly 25 degrees early today.

The city was quiet yesterday and stores were closed. But the mailmen continued their deliveries of mail and parcels through the day.

The city's residents, meanwhile, continued their exodus. Transportation officials last night increased their previous estimates.

Union Station reported an exodus of 100,000; bus terminals 50,000; the American Automobile Association—for auto travel—40,000, and National Airport figures show that perhaps as many as 55,000 have left the city by plane since Friday.

bricks, intoning a prayer over each.

Cardinal Canali placed three white bricks, then each of the other cardinals stepped up to put other bricks in place, one by one. Each brick was stamped, "Anno Jubileum 1950."

As the choir sang the hymn, "Jerusalem, Celestial City," workmen of St. Peter's hoisted against the door a light wooden frame bearing a huge cross in the center.

The bricklaying permanently sealing the Holy Door was completed later by workmen. A total of 3000 bricks were donated by Roman families. They will be returned to their descendants in 1975.

Atop the center brick placed by the Pope was a lead-lined casket containing medals of gold, silver and bronze, coined during the Holy Year and a parchment with an official description of the 1950 jubilee. It will be removed on Christmas Eve, 1975.

Rain, which fell steadily for 18 days, stopped suddenly this morning as thousands of Catholic faithful trudged to St. Peter's basilica. Lightning flashed over the church at 7 a. m. and thunder cracked ominously—but a few minutes later the downpour stopped.

By 8 a. m. the heavy overcast that had covered Rome since December 6 began to fade and over St. Peter's towering dome, blue sky shone through. Within 15 minutes the sky was clear and drifting white clouds gave the impression of a mild autumn day.

The unexpected clearing of the weather—despite a weather bureau prediction of continued rain—kept unbroken the Holy Year record of clear skies for every major religious event of the jubilee.

With the end of the Holy Year the Pope completed a bull, to be issued Monday, setting forth the conditions under which the jubilee indulgence will be extended to the rest of the world in 1951. The text will be issued Tuesday.

During the year the Pope participated in eight canonizations and seven beatifications, the most ever held in a single year. During his reign of 11 years, 10½ months, Pope Pius has beatified and canonized 42 persons, more than any other Pope in modern history.

CIO Calls Bill On Profits Tax A 'Travesty'

By the United Press

The CIO said yesterday that excess profits tax legislation being considered by Congress is a "travesty on justice" and called for a "fair and equitable" law to raise 6 billion to 7 billion dollars in additional revenue.

It made the statement in a tax study in the Economic Outlook, published by the CIO Department of Research and Education.

The Senate approved a compromise corporation tax bill Friday which will raise an estimated $3.3 billion for the rearmament program. The House is due to vote on it January 1.

While the CIO study was prepared before the Senate voted, it foresaw most of the bill's provisions.

The measure provides for a 2 percent increase in the present 45 percent regular tax on corporation earnings of more than $25,000 a year. A total levy of 77 percent would be applied on "excess profits." It sets a limit of 62 percent on the amount of a firm's net income that can be taken in Federal taxes.

The CIO objected to a provision under which the excess profits levy will apply to earnings above 85 percent of the average for a company's best three or four years during the period 1945-49. It said an exemption rate of 75 percent "would be fair."

The CIO protested the bill contains too many "loopholes" and would raise "too little money—an estimated three billion dollars to four billion dollars as compared to the six billion to seven billion dollars which the CIO considers the minimum necessary."

It said profit levels in the years 1946-49 were more than five times as great, before taxes, as they were in 1936-39. Net profits after all taxes, it said, averaged more than four times as much as they did a decade ago.

But it added that "corporations are paying smaller taxes, proportionately to total tax receipts, than at any time since the 1936-39 period.

"At the same time," it said, "the share of direct taxes upon people—that is, individuals' income, estate and gift taxes, including taxes paid by unincorporated businesses and partnerships—has almost doubled.

Plan to Combine UMT With Draft Is Considered

By the United Press

Defense sources disclosed yesterday they are considering a program that would combine universal military training with the draft.

The plan, under close scrutiny by defense officials, would call for registration of all males at the age of 17.

They would be inducted for six months' training after reaching 18.

During the period of military training, contrasted to military service, the 18-year-olds would remain in the United States.

Under the plan, 18-year-olds would be inducted for six months' training on the continent followed by 15 months' service in the armed forces here or anywhere overseas.

Record Set by Vote Volume on November 7

By The Associated Press

A record vote for a nonpresidential election of 42,324,232 was cast on November 7, and Republicans and Democrats received an almost equal division of the 40,351,862 polled by candidates for the House of Representatives.

The aggregate House vote also was a record for an off-year.

Final official returns gathered and tabulated by the Associated Press, show that while the Republicans gained five Senate, 27 House, and six Governor seats, their plurality of the House vote was only 31,557 compared with 2,986,928 in the last off-year in 1946, when they won control of Congress.

Their percentage of the House total was .08 percent more than the Democrats. The vote: Republicans, 19,784,008 or 49.03 percent; Democrats 19,752,451 or 48.95 percent, and others 815,403 or 2.02 percent.

The total popular vote of 42,324,232—based on the highest figure in each state whether for Senator, Governor, Representative or Constitutional amendment (as in several States)—was:

1. An increase of 6,449,664 over the 1946 high and 5,019,852 above the off-year record in 1938.

2. An increase of 88,600 or 0.2 of 1 percent over the 42,235,632 pre-election estimate compiled by the Associated Press from State sources. The A. P. 1946 estimate was 1.2 percent short of the actual vote that year, and in 1948 it was 4.5 over the official presidential vote.

3. Sixty and one-half percent of the estimated eligible voters, compared with 60.1 in 1946; and 43.7 percent of the potential vote (persons 21 and over), as against 39.0 in 1946.

4. Short by 7,491,080 of the all-time high vote—for President in 1940.

The total of 40,351,862 cast for House candidates this year — the best for comparative purposes since all States elect their full quota of Representatives in off-years — was 5,721,436 above 1946 and 4,536,142 over the previous off-year House top in 1938.

For House nominees, the Republicans outvoted the Democrats in 27 States, as against 30 in 1946 They gained over their 1946 vote in 34 States as against 43 for the Democrats.

In percentage of total vote cast for the House in each State, the GOP gained over 1946 in only eight States — Arizona, California, Delaware, Maryland, Mississippi, Texas, Utah and Vermont. Democrats increased their ratio in 39. Both parties lost in ratio in Tennessee, where "other" candidates raised their percentage over 1946.

Compared with four years ago, the Democrats increased their percentage of the total House vote nearly five points, while the Republicans dropped back 3.7. Thus the Democrats halted the steady percentage gains made by the GOP in each off-year after 1938. Here is a table showing the percentage polled by each party in the last seven elections, the House vote being used in non-presidential years:

Republicans, 49.0; Democrats, 49.0.
1948
Republicans, 45.1; Democrats, 49.5.
1946
Republicans, 52.7; Democrats, 44.1.
Republicans, 45.8; Democrats, 53.3.
1942
Republicans, 50.3; Democrats, 47.3.
1940
Republicans, 44.8; Democrats, 54.7.
1938
Republicans, 47.3; Democrats, 49.0.

Only three States — Alabama, Kentucky and Virginia — polled smaller House votes this year than in 1946.

The high popular vote in four States — Arizona, Arkansas, Maryland and South Dakota—exceeded the presidential vote in 1948 in those States.

West Germans Vote 'No Arming' in Poll

HANNOVER, Germany, Dec. 24 (AP).—A magazine's poll of its German readers showed today that a large majority opposes West German rearmament.

Der Spiegel (The Mirror), an independent weekly news magazine, said 33,000 Germans answered its questionnaire. The results were published as the Western Allies and the West German government were negotiating terms under which West Germany might agree to contribute troops to aid in a united defense of western Europe.

Eighty-five percent said they do not want to become soldiers or to have their close relatives become soldiers. Only 12.8 percent answered "Yes."

Opposing the creation of voluntary troop units were 60.8 percent, while 82.6 percent voted against compulsory military service. Only 35.4 percent favor voluntary troops and 15.8 compulsory service.

An overwhelming percentage, 95.5, opposed accepting the plan proposed by France to restrict any German troops raised to small units with no general staff and no war ministry. Even if West Germany were given full equality with other nations in a European army, 68.4 percent would still oppose German rearmament.

On the question of whether West Germany should join the North Atlantic defense pact, 81.5 percent said "No."

Acheson's Word

Treaty Vows Held Binding By GOP Foes

By The Associated Press

Senator Ives (R. N. Y.), said yesterday the United States "is going to stick by" commitments Secretary of State Acheson made at the Brussels conference of North Atlantic Pact nations.

Ives, a leader in getting GOP Congress members to demand Acheson's dismissal recently, said the ouster move was not aimed at "discrediting" this Nation's representative at the Brussels meeting.

And he added:

"Obviously the country is going to stand by the commitments and agreements reached at these conferences."

The North Atlantic nations agreed at Brussels to contribute to the formation of a one-million-man army headed by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, for defending Western Europe against possible Communist aggression.

Commitments Unknown

The extent of American participation was not announced, but some controversy was threatened in Congress over Administration plans to send more troops to Europe as soon as possible to serve in the projected international army.

Former President Hoover has spoken against sending more men or money to Europe until the Allies have formed a huge force of their own. He called for Western Hemisphere defense. Senate GOP Leader Wherry has expressed general agreement with Hoover.

Ives made his statement during a recorded radio discussion of the Congressional foreign policy controversy which inspired the GOP demands that Acheson be fired. Ives and Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) restated their views that Acheson should resign.

Knowland, long a bitter critic of United States foreign policy in the Far East, said he has supported Administration policy in Europe. But he added that the State Department under Acheson had "left the doors wide open to Communism in Asia."

In replying to Knowland, Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.), said that although he was "not at all happy over Far Eastern policy," conditions in the Orient could not be blamed on Acheson. Most of the trouble, he said, resulted because "our people lost confidence in Chiang Kai-Shek."

Acheson No Softy

Knowland retorted that Chiang lost his fight to hold the Chinese mainland "because we cut the supply line to the Nationalists while Russia supplied the Communists."

Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.), said, although he had not always supported Acheson's policies, "I do not believe he is a Communist, a pink, or has been soft with communism."

Fulbright said he felt the GOP resolution attacking Acheson was "particularly inappropriate on the eve of the Brussels meeting because it created "confusion in the minds of our allies over who should speak for the United States."

Sparkman said he believed "no man could do better in containing communism" than Acheson has done. Because of recent political and military reverses in the Far East, he added, "people are not satisfied and they are looking for a scapegoat. That's a pretty dangerous idea to follow."

U. S. Ship Assists 50 North Koreans Fleeing From Reds

TOKYO, Dec. 24 (AP). — The United States destroyer Eversole Friday aided nearly fifty starving and freezing North Koreans fleeing by sea from the Communists. They were aboard a 45-foot craft which displayed the South Korean and United Nations flags.

At sea for five days, three had died of exposure. The Eversole provided fresh water and food. Hospital corpsmen ministered to the sick, and every man of the destroyer crew gave an article of clothing, cigarettes, food or candy. With a chart and compass and other gifts from the Eversole, the Koreans headed south again.

Indians Believe U. S. Policies Accelerate Drift Toward War

By A. T. Steele

NEW DELHI, Dec. 24 (NYHT). The bruised state of American prestige in India is apparent to any visitor. In the press and in conversation, American policies are criticized as being too bellicose and too unyielding.

We are accused of accelerating the drift toward World War III by involving ourselves too deeply in the affairs of Asia. Our actions are often misrepresented and our motives are often misunderstood.

India's attitude is a tangle of complexes that is not easy to untangle. India's misunderstanding of the American viewpoint is matched only by American misunderstanding of India's. Yet paradoxically, India never has felt so keenly the need for American economic assistance and never has been so desirous of obtaining it.

Aimed at Policies

Indian criticism is aimed not at Americans as individuals, but at our policies. Any American traveler in India will attest to the friendliness and hospitality of the Indian people.

Like the United States, India wants neither communism nor a world war. But there is a fundamental difference between the American and the Indian approach.

Most Indians fear war more than the threat of Communist world domination. Though India is closer to the centers of Communist power, her people, generally, are far more complacent than Americans about the external, Communist danger.

India is essentially a pacifist country, still deeply steeped in the nonviolence philosophy of the late Mohandas K. Gandhi.

See Cause, Not Effect

Indian thinking on Russia and China is rather similar to what American thinking was five years ago. Indians have not felt as deeply as Americans the frustrating impact of rebuff after rebuff. They tend to look upon our actions in Korea, Indo-China, Formosa and even Europe as the cause rather than the effect of Communist belligerance. They think we should get out of Asia militarily and confine our activities to economic assistance of a nonpolitical character.

Some Indians complain that India has been discriminated against in the matter of American economic assistance; others stand ready to denounce any such program as another example of American "economic imperialism." Indians are, of course, extremely sensitive to any racism in the American outlook. Any ill considered suggestion that Asian lives are one whit cheaper than American lives is highly offensive to Indian sensibilities. This has been evident in the Indian reaction to the fighting in Korea.

President Truman's statement on the atomic bomb—though widely misinterpreted — provoked a very sour reaction in India, especially because it was directed toward an Asian situation.

Last Troops Are Evacuated From U. N. Beachhead in Northeast Korea of the United States Eight Army. Chinese were moving in strength in the Yonchon sector six miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel and some 35 miles north of Seoul.

The U. N. pullout from Korangpo was at a point 16 miles east of Kaesong. An estimated 1000 Reds moved west from Changdong toward Kaesong, key communications city 36 miles northwest of Seoul.

South Koreans began pulling out of Kaesong a week ago.

The United States Army briefing officer reported a successful counterattack by the South Korean Third corps in the center of the peninsula which restored positions recently lost to the Communists.

The South Koreans had been forced back more than two miles in the vicinity of Chunchon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul. Red pressure at that point appeared aimed at the U. N. right flank.

Small Red forces stabbed to within 27 miles of Seoul to the northwest of the capital.

A spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters predicted the full-scale Red attack might come at any moment.

Wryly, he said, "they may have a Christmas present for us."

MacArthur said in a war summary late Sunday that Chinese Reds "are deploying into attack positions" near Kuhwa, on the main Yonchon-Seoul highway. In general, it said, the Reds were building up strength all along the line.

Chinese prisoners disclosed that Red troops were across the thirty-eighth parallel in "considerable strength." This was in the vicinity of Kaeson, 36 miles northwest of the South Korean capital at Seoul and two miles south of the Parallel.

The Reds also were laboriously moving tanks and artillery toward the front in bitterly cold weather.

Chinese Red patrols had pushed across the thirty-eighth parallel at three points on the western end of the line and at a fourth point near Chogye on the Allied right flank. Chogye is two miles south of the Parallel and 8 miles northeast of Seoul.

More than 40 B-29 Superforts combed North Korea Sunday in their continuing attacks on military targets. Waves of B-29s dropped 110 tons of bombs at Pyongyang and 230 more tons on five North Korean road centers immediately north of the 38th parallel. These included Chorwon, Koksan, Kosangjin, and Sangjin.

Red antiaircraft batteries opened up on the last wave of B-29s over Pyongyang and fired intermittently at Chorwon, but failed to damage the raiding aircraft, Air Force headquarters said.

The United Nations planes, which included American, South African and Australian units, ranged throughout northern Korea, striking at supply buildings and convoys. Some twenty-six trucks were left burning.

Hand Grenade Attacks Injure 50 in Saigon

SAIGON, Indo-China, Dec. 24 (U.P.).—Fifty persons were injured yesterday when Communists exploded hand grenades in central Saigon, police reported today.

It was the biggest single terrorist blow in the city since the Red-dominated Viet Minh movement started hostilities against the French five years ago.

The violence was timed to coincide with the signing of the treaty under which the native state of Viet Nam became an independent nation within the French Union. Communists had boasted blood would be shed on the treaty day.

Forty-three were wounded during the dinner hour last night when Communists threw grenades into holiday-crowded restaurants, dance halls and jammed streets. Of the casualties, 30 Viet Namese and one Sengalese guard were hurt when three grenades went off near United States military office headquarters.

Seven persons were injured earlier in the day. Police killed one grenade thrower and arrested two others.

Women Warned

1945 Peace 'Wreck' Laid To 'Momism'

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (U.P.).—The national president of the American Legion Auxiliary warned American women today to steer clear of "momism," which, she said, "wrecked the peace" in 1945.

Mrs. William C. Reed, Vinita, Okla., told the mothers and wives of soldiers on the Korean battleline that she understood their suffering, but that "this is no time to bring the boys home."

In a statement issued here before returning to Oklahoma for Christmas, Mrs. Reed said:

"There are homes all over America today where Christmas will be observed with vacant chairs at the table for the young men in our armed services. To these women in homes everywhere in the U. S. A., I say that I know of their sufferings and longings . . . At the same time I ask them to be patient."

"Many unthinking and uninformed women joined in the cry 'Bring the boys home' in 1945. This resulted in demobilization at a time when American might in Europe would have held the Iron Curtain back."

Mrs. Reed said many young wives of soldiers were guilty of "momism" too.

"We must use our influence, as women, to have the United States armed and equipped with larger forces . . . We must see that the United States is strengthened and kept that way," she said.

Gen. Walker To Be Buried In Arlington

BELTON, Tex., Dec. 24 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, Eighth Army commander who was killed in a jeep accident in Korea, will be buried in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, D. C., his mother was notified today.

The General's wife telephoned Mrs. Walker from Japan to tell her of plans for the services.

His mother, more than 80, sighed deeply and said: "Well that's all right. I guess he belongs to his country more than to us."

There was no indication when the funeral will be held.

Walker Honored Here As Mason in 1945

District of Columbia Masons recalled last night that Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker received high Masonic honors here in 1945 in recognition of distinguished service to his country. At that time, at a session of the Supreme Council, 33d Degree of Scottish Rite, he received the rank and decoration of Knight Commander.

General Walker was a 32d Degree Mason, Galveston (Tex.) Bodies of Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemansonry.

Press Requested To 'Scrutinize' Self For National Unity

By The Associated Press

Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) urged yesterday that the Nation's press "scrutinize" itself in the interest of national unity.

The senator, on a television program, said the press has been "too severe" on public figures, so that competent men shy away from public office.

He charged "small abuses" are blown up into "great evils" for political reasons.

Even irresponsible accusations are prominently displayed in the press, he said, but when a retraction is issued it is "buried."

Asked if he were confusing columnists and commentators with reporters, the Senator said.

"Both have been guilty."

It's a Happy Yule With 'Harvey' Here

By Richard L. Coe

A MERRY CHRISTMAS to you all and especially to "Harvey," who has arrived on Keith's screen as one of the most beguiling comedies possible.

The screen version of Mary Chase's celebrated hit strikes me as a pleasant surprise, thanks largely to Mrs. Chase's and Oscar Brodney's fine adaptation and to the playing of James Stewart and Josephine Hull.

Mrs. Hull is especial joy, for it has long been my theory that this comedy has not one but two equally vital costarring roles. I first encountered "Harvey" with Frank Fay and Mrs. Hull in their original roles, then I saw Fay again and several of his successors, but each time without Mrs. Hull and missed her badly. Frankly I thought I'd had "Harvey" and was mildly unenthusiastic about seeing it again as a movie.

But dumpy, eerie, doggedly cheerful Mrs. Hull, as the sister who has learned to live with the invisible rabbit, does a triumph of make-believe. When, near the end of her harrowing day, she stumbles into Chumley's Rest and chirps "Good, nobody here but people," you are watching, I'm sure, one of the inspired moments of a decade.

Surely you've learned, during the past six years, about "Harvey," how he's an enormous 6-foot-plus rabbit, invisible to all except his pal Elwood P. Dowd, a likeable lush who finds reality a bit too bald for comfort. How Elwood's insistence on introducing his unseen companion embarasses his elder sister and her gawky daughter, how they finally determine to put him away in a rest home and how a taxi-driver sagely observes that patients are friendly and happy on their way out there and just like other people on their way back to town is practically folklore.

"HARVEY," screen play by Mary C. Chase and Oscar Brodney, from Mrs. Chase's play of the same name; directed by Henry Koster; produced by John Beck for Universal-International. At Keith's.

A New Effective Scene

In constructing the picture version, the writers and Director Henry Koster have elaborated a bit on the sentimental side and it gives the film a scene of memorable mood. This occurs in a lonely alley outside the bar where Elwod is wont to meet Harvey. Jimmy Stewart plays this interlude of gentleness with a probing kind of depth that gives meaning to his escape from reality. The scene is a sound invention and the shift in audience mood is noteworthy.

And it is also the reason I think the screen version is better than the play; what once was the adventure of a friendly drunk becomes something the staunchest teetotler can condone. It makes "Harvey" the heartfelt cry against the cruelties of the world which was, I imagine, Mrs. Chase's original idea.

And to put across this thought, there is the deftest of slapstick comedy; a musical afternoon with sister Veta's stuffy friends, the astonished conversion undergone by psychiatrist Chumley, neatly played by Cecil Kellaway; the bemused conversation between Elwood and Mrs. Chumley from her limousine; the ragged efforts of Veta's judicial admirer, Judge Gaffney, and the strained efforts of the sanitarium staff to hold onto their familar approach.

All these things, I'm sure, will beguile you and make you laugh inside. And most of all I'm certain you'll admire the able playing of Stewart and the marvelous out-of-this-world perplexity of the superb Mrs. Hull. Both are Academy Award performances.

GEORGIA GIBBS has had to give up all hope of headlining the Capitol's current stage bill . . . The singer's doctor says flatly that it will be another 10 days before she should sing again, which is too bad for admirers of Her Nibs . . . Still, the Gibbs cloud has silver lining for Kay De Witt fans, for it means that the popular personality girl will remain in the honored top spot, singing about that "Orange-Colored Sky," among other things . . . Washington audiences have always given Kay a headliner's hand and it's nice to find her in the right spot.

"CYRANO DE BERGERAC," the Jose Ferrer screen version, will take over the Playhouse for a reserved-seat run starting January 24, a Wednesday . . . The picture is playing New York's Bijou on this policy, which will prevail throughout the country . . . Stanley Kramer produced the Rostand romantic drama, using the Brian Hooker translation which served both Walter Hampden and Ferrer on the stage . . . Seat sale details will be announced later . . . Ferrer by the way, opened last night at New York's ANTA Playhouse in "Twentieth Century," costarring with Gloria Swanson in the Hecht-MacArthur comedy.

THOUGH Edward Arnold doesn't officially open in "Apple of His Eye" till tomorrow night at the Gayety, there will be a special performance there tonight for veterans from Walter Reed Hospital, a mighty nice idea . . . Nor, by the way, is there a performance tonight at Arena Stage, where "Alice in Wonderland" resumes its run tomorrow night.

THE PLAZA yesterday morning gave a special showing of its children's film, "The Little Ballerina," for underprivileged children of the area in cooperation with the Children's Theater of Washington.

THREE'S A CROWD: Jimmy Stewart seems to be having one of his conversations with that hard-to-see pal of his while Josephine Hull looks what is called askance in Keith's "Harvey," able adaptation of Mary Chase's stage hit about an invisible rabbit

GI Schooling to Be Asked For Service in Korea War

A special House committee on abuse of the veterans training program will ask the new Congress to extend to Korean war veterans free schooling provisions of the GI Bill of Rights, it was disclosed yesterday.

But Committee Chairman Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.) said it will recommend that this not be done until the law is tightened up to bar further abuse both by schools and by the Veterans Administration.

The GI bill now gives veterans of World War II up to four years free schooling, depending on length of service. The Government pays tuition, a living allowance, and legitimate costs of tools, books and equipment.

The committee now is drafting a report for the House, to be submitted on January 1. Among other things, it will ask that its inquiry be extended.

So far the committee has investigated abuse of the GI training law by some profit-operated trade schools and has looked into complaints of delay and bungling by the VA in administering the law.

Teague said the committee also wants to investigate how the Government-sponsored training program has worked in public schools and colleges. There have been reports of some abuses, he said.

Meantime the committee expects to propose these general changes:

1. A prohibition against a practice by some schools of buying tools for students at discount prices and charging the VA full price for them.

2. Simplification of VA procedure in dealing with schools to cut down delay and what some witnesses called "stalling."

3. Creation of a workable "appeals board" to which schools can take their complaints of unfair treatment by the agency.

Stage Duelers Wow Audience

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24 (AP).—Shakespearean actors William Pullen and Allen Reed gave "Twelfth Night" more realism last night than it has had in many a performance—and more than they are likely ever to give it again.

They were clashing about the Century Theater stage when Pullen lost his balance and the tip of Reed's foil pierced Pullen's arm. Pullen fainted and real blood, not catsup, trickled on the stage.

While the audience, unknowing, stormed its approval and demanded an encore, Pullen was being treated at Hollywood Receiving Hospital for his superficial wound.

College Rolls Decline 9.4%; Korean War Effect Is Denied

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 24 (U.P.). — The number of full-time United States college and university students dropped 9.4 percent last fall, but the Korean war is not to blame, according to the thirty-first annual study of college-university enrollments released today.

California University again led in full-time enrollment with 39,492 students, and New York University in grand total enrollment with 46,357.

Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati, reported in his annual study for the educational weekly, School and Society, that on November 1, 1700 approved institutions had 1,414,428 full-time and 1,848,187 grand-total students.

The drop in the grand total, which includes part-time and night-school students, was 7.1 percent under the previous fall.

Dr. Walters blamed last June's record-breaking graduation classes, predominantly veterans, and the low birth rate of the 1930s for the decrease. He said the low birth rate factor "will prevail for some time."

State-supported universities reported 9.2 percent fewer grand-total students; universities under private control 9.2 percent fewer full-time and 5.7 percent fewer grand-total students; independent colleges of arts and sciences, 8.9 percent fewer full-time and 7 percent fewer grand-total students; independent techonological institutions, 10.7 percent fewer full-time and 6.1 percent fewer grand-total students; and independent teachers' colleges, 4.5 percent fewer full-time and 4.1 percent fewer grand-total students.

Here are the country's 25 largest universities in full-time enrollment:

1. California, 39,492; 2. Columbia, 21,938; 3. Minnesota, 21,680; 4. Illinois, 20,488; 5. New York University, 19,773; 6. Ohio State, 18,946; 7. Michigan, 18,912; 8. Wisconsin, 18,357; 9. Syracuse, 16,007; 10. Michigan State College, 13,692; 11. Indiana, 13,386; 12. Washington, 12,621; 13. Southern California, 11,581; 14. Boston University, 11,066; 15. Purdue, 10,919; 16. Harvard, 10,801; 17. City College of New York, 10,173; 18. Cornell, 10,115; 19. Pittsburgh, 10,071; 20. Pennsylvania State College, 10,053; 21. Florida, 10,039; 22. Missouri, 9,822; 23. Pennsylvania, 9781; 24. Northwestern, 9356; 25. Iowa, 9125.

Army Clubs to Lose Slot Machines

officers' and enlisted men's clubs where they are standard equipment.

Other slightly more optimistic club officials said the slot machine ban, with the resulting loss of revenue, may have one or possibly all of these effects: boost meal prices, reduce services, curtail free dances, raise membership dues, or close clubs with exceptionally small clientele in isolated areas.

Representative Pat Sutton (D., Tenn.) tried unsuccessfully to have these clubs exempted from the legislation when it was before the House last August.

A member of the Department of Defense policy board sized up the slot machine situation this way:

"It's going to curtail activities to such an extent that many clubs will not be able to stay in business."

Only one of the several military installations checked by the Post yesterday greeted the impending ban with enthusiasm. That was the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda.

"We'll be glad to get rid of them. There's been too much complaint about them from a moral point of view," Lieut. Cmdr. C. L. Crawford, the center's press officer said.

The officers club there, he explained, is operating at a profit on all services. Meals at the club range from $1.25 to $2.50. Another reason for the club's healthy finances is its large volume of business, the officer said.

The slot machine bill presents Maryland with this poser. The machines now are allowed by local option to operate in Calvert, Anne Arundel, St. Mary's and Charles counties. But the nationwide measure directs that states must enact legislation providing for the exemption of itself or any of its subdivisions from the bill.

Marshall Plan May Be Ended

impact" of rearmament on its economy.

ECA is supposed to help meet difficulties in the European balance of payments with the dollar area—now no longer the major problem—and MDAP money is supposed to pay for the costs of raw materials and components from the dollar area which the North Atlantic Treaty countries need to produce their own weapons.

The new legislation which the Administration is now considering, however, would allow greater leeway, so that aid could be given to create "situations of strength," whether economic or military.

It would be designed to help a nation which, for example, was running into economic trouble because it converted to defense production an industry that formerly produced goods for export, by which dollars were earned.

Under plans now being considered, the MDAP supply of military end items — finished munitions—would be administered separately, presumably by the Pentagon.

In this program, Greece and Austria would be special cases. As has long been recognized, they require straight economic help, regardless of added military burdens, for some period. Western Germany may also be a case apart, depending on what has transpired there by next June in its rearmament.

But in all other Marshall Plan and North Atlantic Treaty countries, continuance of American assistance will be linked closely with what is being done, and what is needed, for expanded defense.

High-Speed Controlled Access Highway

Map courtesy of the Baltimore Evening Sun

BALTIMORE PARKWAY—The general plan for bringing traffic to downtown Washington from the new Baltimore pkwy. is shown here. New York ave. ne. will be extended across the District line and Kenilworth ave. ne. (River rd. on the Maryland side) will be rebuilt into a high-speed controlled-access road. This route eventually will connect with the proposed East Capitol st. bridge, location of which has not yet been determined ave. on the east bank of the river. That will have to await the proposed Alexandria crossing bridge, he said.

The other leg of the plan for bringing the Baltimore pkwy traffic into downtown Washington is the extension of New York ave. ne., from Bladensburg rd. to the proposed cloverleaf interchange just over the District line. The proposed Annapolis freeway, also will eventually feed into one part of this huge interchange.

The Baltimore job, due to be finished by June, will bring the limited-access highway (with no traffic lights) as far as the Russell st. bridge over Gwynns Falls, well downtown.

The Washington plan calls for widening either Constitution or Independence ave. to the east of the Capitol and for depressed highway construction to afford high-speed limited access.

Churchill's Message

Nine years ago last night Winston Churchill delivered from the White House balcony a Christmas message that is again full of meaning for a turbulent world. He said:

> This is a strange Christmas Eve. Almost the whole world is locked in deadly struggle, and, with the most terrible weapons which science can devise, the nations advance upon each other. Ill would it be this Christmastide if we were not sure that no greed for the land or wealth of any other people, no vulgar ambition, no morbid lust for material gain at the expense of others, had led us to the field. Here, in the midst of war, raging and roaring over all the lands and seas, creeping nearer to our hearths and homes, here, amid all the tumult, we have tonight the peace of the spirit in each cottage home and in every generous heart. Therefore, we may cast aside for this night at least the cares and dangers which beset us, and make for the children an evening of happiness in a world of storm. Here then, for one night only, each home throughout the English-speaking world should be a brightly lighted island of happiness and peace . . .
> And so, in God's mercy, a happy Christmas to you all.

The Scarpati Case

Anthony Scarpati, aged 17, was one of the gang of young truants and rowdies who call themselves the South Brooklyn Boys. One day last spring the South Brooklyns engaged in a pitched battle in Prospect Park with another gang of adolescents who call themselves the Tigers. It had been agreed that it would be the sort of contest known as a "rumble" in which the combatants are supposed to limit themselves to punching, kicking and gouging and to avoid the use of lethal weapons. But, as sometimes happens among uniformed armies, the laws of civilized warfare were not strictly observed. Knives, brass knuckles and pistols were brought into play. When the battle was over one of the Tigers with the singularly inappropriate name of James Fortunato was dead from a bullet wound; another boy had been stabbed and badly hurt. Young Scarpati was presently under arrest, charged with homicide and the illegal possession and use of a pistol.

The case, although only one of several adolescent gang battles in New York this year that have resulted in deaths, attracted a good deal of national attention because of a somewhat unconventional procedure followed by the trial judge, Samuel Leibowitz, formerly a celebrated criminal lawyer. Judge Leibowitz permitted one of the chieftains of the South Brooklyn Boys to appear before the court and make a public plea in Scarpati's behalf. Young Joe Senatore was reported to have said to the judge and jurors:

> Look, you ain't goin' to change no conditions by sendin' him to jail. It wasn't his fault any more than it was ours. It was an accident. You ain't goin' to reform him by sendin' him to jail; you're just goin' to make him bitter like I am . . . What do you want us to do? You tell us: 'Have respect for the law.' How can I have respect for the law, when the cops themselves don't have no respect for it, and when I see them cuttin' in our crap games and card games? . . . It ain't us; it's the neighborhood . . . What do you want us to do? Stay home seven nights a week? We go to a poolroom or sumpin' and the cops break in on us . . .

Some days afterward, when a sentence of from 13 to 30 years in jail had been passed on Scarpati, and the officers were preparing to lead him away, his mother, a widow with many other children, burst into convulsive grief. The flashbulbs of newspaper photographers began to explode about the pitiful scene of farewell, much to the anger of the South Brooklyn Boys and their girl admirers who filled the courtroom. Young Senatore seems to have led a little riot that followed. When it was quelled by the court attendants and police, he was summoned to the bar for contempt, but allowed to leave the court when he told how Scarpati's sisters had begged him not to let the photographers make a public exhibition of their mother's anguish.

This melodramatic episode serves to point up the fact that crime among minors is still among the most formidable of our domestic problems. It is said that this year the number of adolescents sent to prison for serious offenses will exceed even the figure for 1946, when it was the highest in history. The Scarpati case is also a reminder that an effective remedy for juvenile crime is as far as ever from having been found. There are some social workers and probation officers whose view of the problem is much the same as the one expressed by young Senatore. Others, among them many teachers, believe that one of the contributing factors has been the progressive advancement of the term of compulsory education. Since they are forbidden to work, many boys and girls who are wholly without interest in academic subjects are left on the loose under circumstances that afford them abundant invitations to get into trouble. Or when they bother to attend classes, the result is to demoralize, and even to terrorize, pupils and teachers alike. Thus it is something of a commentary on the case that on the eve of the Prospect Park battle Scarpati had at last got to the point of hunting a job and that his victim, Fortunato, had been promised one.

Christmas

The Christmas season is the particular occasion for a call upon the Christian world to disenthrall itself from the false gods of selfishness, separatism, nationalism. Out of Bethlehem we hear again: A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another. Down the corridors of time the commandment rings out on this Day of Days. The times give the call a new urgency. The reason as well as the conscience of mankind is pricked by it as we contemplate what is meant by living unto oneself within the four walls of even our continental home. "There are no islands any more."

Our thoughts turn today to the law of Christ as a respite from the laws of men. We shall be told today from pulpits the world over that the law of Christ is fulfilled by bearing one another's burdens. In the days when this was written it meant those acts of charity which constitute the Christian principle of good living. How much more than that is it now! "No private program and no private policy in any sector of our national life," Mr. Stimson once wrote, "can now escape from the compelling fact that, if it is not framed with reference to the world, it is framed with perfect futility." Bearing one another's burdens in the modern context is, indeed, enlightened self-interest. Out of biology Alfred Whitehead finds that "those organisms are successful which modify their environment so as to assist each other."

The choice to act in that knowledge is ours, not God's. And by ours we mean the American people's. Never in the history of this planet has so much power for good and ill fallen to the lot of one people. Never have we depended so singularly upon our leadership to act with the wisdom of a wide survey. For the rest of the year the people in their public discussions will hear nothing but power relations. But power must be united to principle as the price of survival, and this is the particular day to talk about principle.

Only as we base our conduct upon the religion and morality that George Washington called those "firmest" of all "props" in our governance can we find salvation. Only as we follow the star that shone on the shepherds as they watched their flocks on the hillside and in the morning led the wise men from the East to the inn in the town—only as we follow that star can we create peace on earth and good will among men.

Washington's Christmas

"I heartily wish you the compliments of the season, and the return of many happy New Years," George Washington wrote in a 1774 Christmas greeting reproduced in an advertisement of the Riggs National Bank in this newspaper yesterday. Christmas was a time of particular poignancy for George Washington. There is a lot of history surrounding that greeting, and a lot of meaning for present-day Americans who are troubled or whose sons or husbands are in Korea on this Christmas Day.

Washington little knew, when he wrote those "compliments," that he would not get back to his beloved Mount Vernon at Christmastime for nine bleak years. In June, 1775, the Continental Congress appointed him commander in chief of the Army of the United Colonies. That Christmas his winter headquarters were in Cambridge, where he was joined by Martha Washington, much as GI wives of today seek to share holidays with their husbands.

On Christmas, 1776, Washington was preoccupied with a hazardous military operation—the crossing of the Delaware during the Battle of Trenton. This was followed by the bitter winter at Valley Forge in 1777, when troops were often hungry and in rags and the fortunes of the Continental Army were at their lowest. Washington, a well-to-do gentleman, did not share all the privations of his men, but he had the same concern as any good field commander. Olive Bailey, in Christmas with the Washingtons, writes:

> A day or so before Christmas (1777) the steward was able to purchase cabbage, turnips and potatoes. There was some meat and fowl, but no eggs, milk, flour, tea or coffee, and the meals served to officers and men on Christmas Day were not enlivened by pastries, or even bread.

In 1778 Washington's headquarters were in Middlebrook, N. J., but Martha Washington was delayed en route and could not join him for the holiday. Christmas, 1780, when the Washingtons were at New Windsor, N. Y., was the most gala occasion of the war years—but festivities were saddened soon afterward with the news that Wakefield, the house in which Washington was born, burned to the ground on Christmas morning. Celebration in Philadelphia in 1781 of the Cornwallis surrender at Yorktown was marred by the death shortly before Christmas of John Parke Custis, Martha Washington's son.

The war was over for all practical purposes when the Washingtons celebrated Christmas, 1782, at Newburgh, N. Y. Not until 1783, however, after Washington's formal resignation as commander in chief at Annapolis on December 23, did he return to Mount Vernon for a traditional Christmas. In this period of tragedy and tension there is a good deal of solace to be found in the tribulations of the first President and military commander. Christmas has often dawned under gloom heavier than it is today.

Walter Damrosch

Little more than a generation ago Americans might have been described with some justice as the least musical of all peoples. Today there is no country of the world in which musical activities are so generously, even extravagantly, supported. The level of American musical taste is now probably as high as anywhere in Europe. American artists—who in days gone by suffered such insuperable obstacles to recognition that some of them in desperation adopted foreign names and affected exotic accents—now hold their own on the concert platforms and the operatic stages, and some American composers have won a measure of world recognition.

This transformation is the result of many factors, chief among them perhaps technological innovations like the radio and electrical phonograph recording, which have brought the best music within reach of multitudes of persons. But even this would hardly have sufficed had there not been such a person as Walter Damrosch to make the meaning of great music intelligible to uninstructed ears. For though he was a musician of note, not only as a conductor but also as a pianist and a composer, his greatest contribution to his art was that of teacher. By his skill and resourcefulness in explaining in comprehensible language the nature and the rewards of musical experience he created those vast audiences that were necessary to an American musical renaissance. In this sense of course he was a popularizer; but his method was to lift the esthetic understanding of the listener to the level of the music rather than attempt, as some popularizers have done, to debase the music to the level of the uncultivated.

How many lives he enriched by his tutelage, how many passed to an awareness of beauty and to unimagined pleasures through the doors that he unlocked for them, how many musical ambitions he kindled among the gifted young, would be impossible to say. But it is safe enough to count all those who have come under his beneficent influence by the millions. Few men in any age have lived more useful and rewarding lives; and now that he is dead in the fullness of years, we may say that few will be remembered by so many with such gratitude and affection.

Gas Rates Decision

So far as the public is concerned, the most important aspect of the Court of Appeals' decision in the gas rates case is that the higher rates approved by the Public Utilities Commission have been overturned. It is important to note, however, that the Court of Appeals did not follow the reasoning of Judge Goldsborough in holding the rates invalid and that it has sent the case back to the PUC for further action. Judge Goldsborough had said that it was an error of law for the PUC to include in the rate base the gas company's abandoned West Plant and the cost of converting manufactured gas burners for natural gas. The Court of Appeals says in effect that the West Plant may be included in the rate base until full allowance for depreciation has been made if investors have not already been compensated for the risk of obsolescence. It does not upset the PUC's inclusion of conversion costs in the rate base.

The chief complaint of the Court of Appeals is that the record and the findings of the PUC are inadequate. The commission, Judge Bazelon's opinion states, "made no inquiry whatsoever into issues necessary to determination of a fair rate of return." The PUC may have relied upon its prior finding that 6 percent was a proper rate of return. But the court points out: "There is nothing before us to indicate that pertinent local conditions and economic conditions generally have remained static during the intervening years. Nor does it appear that the risk factor, so important an element in fixing rate of return has remained static." Here is an important reminder that utility rates should not be automatically changed to conform to a previous concept of an adequate return without looking at the measuring stick itself in the light of current conditions.

As we understand the decision, it does not mean that the higher gas rates or similar rates may not be allowed in the end. As the Supreme Court has often said, it is not the function of the courts to upset rates fixed by quasi-legislative bodies so long as the "total effect" or end result "cannot be said to be unjust or unreasonable." But the courts do have a right to insist that proper records and findings be made and that all the basic factors in the rate-making process be adequately considered. The case goes back to the PUC for this purpose.

INTRUSION

From the hill's crest
To the river's brink,
Where the loon nest
And the deer drink,
Any quiet word
Wakes the sudden shock
Of thunder stirred
Out of sleeping rock.

Quickened deer melt
From the dark river
To each quake felt
On the wind's quiver;
A shadow drifts
Where white waters race
When the loon lifts
From its hiding place.

When all sounds cease,
The echo's thrust
Subsides to peace
Like a settled dust
Where the loon stood
And the deer drank
By the dim wood
On the riverbank.

Thought For Christmas

We talk mighty big these days about the wonderful way of life we mean to protect and share with the rest of the world. The present misery of the shakedown cruise is exposing so many flaws in our civilization that one is tempted to wonder whether there really is anything in it worthy of our love and affection.

As the storm grows ever fiercer one by one our cherished idols tremble, then topple and fall. Soon there will be nothing left for us except naked man standing humbly before his Creator and really asking at last, "What is truth? and What is the good of life?"

And He will patiently say anew, "God is Love, and since man is made in His Own Image, he also is made for love. And what is life, you ask? What else than the infinite expression of universal love, wrought out for all in thought and word and deed? And what is truth? These wondrous harmonies themselves, with all sour notes washed out. Bless you, children, that is what Christ came into the world to show you, so many long years ago. Don't you know that this is the ever good news the angels sang to the shepherds who saw His star?"

This Christmas as every day, God tells it again to the humble hearts who will listen. Pray God that this time we will really hear it!

Seagoing Bases

It is good to note in the Alsops' column of December 18 a forthright statement of a fact often ignored in official pronouncements. They pointedly state that the so-called "intercontinental bombing" by the B-36 and by medium bombers refueled in the air would drastically reduce our atomic bombing potential below that obtainable from bases overseas. This, coming now from writers friendly to the Air Force, is one of the things that certain Navy partisans were condemned for daring to say little over a year ago.

In this vital need for strategic bases overseas lies the hard military reason why we cannot relapse into a smug atomic isolation, such as many feared would result in the heyday of the B-36 propaganda. Without in any way disparaging the considerable abilities of the B-36, it is clear that our strategic bombing abilities will be considerably enhanced if we can in addition use the much faster B-47 jet bomber, in quantity. This can be done only from bases on the other side of the Atlantic, in territory where we need the effective military cooperation of firm allies. Therefore, if we are to exert our full atomic power, we must keep our allies friendly, strong, and in high morale.

It is nevertheless worth mentioning that our situation is not wholly as dependent on bases abroad as the Alsops make out. For as long as we maintain adequate carrier, amphibious, and Marine forces, we can eventually capture and build bases overseas. Also, if press reports are to be credited, the Navy now has a multi-engine atomic bomber which can both take off from and land on carrier bases off enemy shores. The current precarious situation of our allies and our foreign bases now makes even more questionable the wisdom of canceling the proposed new carrier which could, a few years hence, handle still faster and longer-ranged atomic bombers and escort fighters.

While the carrier force does not have the primary mission of strategic bombing, it is comforting to know that we have this ace in the hole in case we and our allies lose control of the bases on which we rely. Perhaps it is with this in mind that Walter Lippmann, in the same issue, urges substitution of flexible and mobile sea and air defense and offense, in which we excel, for the policy of world-wide containment on the ground, with which we are now in difficulty.

Meant For Roosevelt?

The attempted assassination of President Truman recently, plus the publication by you and other newspapers of the latest series of Roosevelt letters, has had the effect of renewing interest in the supposed attempted assassination of Franklin D. Roosevelt at Miami, Fla., just prior to his inauguration in 1933.

You are not alone in your honest belief that the man who killed Mayor Cermak had, as his purpose, the assassination of Roosevelt. But, there are others who believe, as I do, that Cermak was the intended, as he was the actual, victim. There are circumstances which point in that direction. On the contrary, I have never seen or heard anything that seemed to indicate that the shot was intended for Roosevelt and either went astray or was interrupted by Cermak in his desire to protect the President.

If this is not to become another cherry-tree legend, I hope that some one who has the time and the energy will do what is possible to run it down before it becomes too solidly a part of the Franklin D. Roosevelt story so that it can never be dissected out.

"Private Club"

At a time when the Government is having difficulty in enticing first-rate executives to Washington, it can find a provocative clew to the reason by considering Jerry Kluttz's column of December 10. Kluttz relates the charges of an FTC lawyer that his agency is run as a sort of "private club" for the men who now control it.

The charge is a significant one today, because of the manifest reluctance of top-grade men to risk the hazards of Government employment. They are quite possibly less repelled by the low pay rates than by the sort of experience met by another man in the CAA—an incident which illustrates the arbitrariness of a private club at its worst. The man in question was a highly competent executive with a distinguished war record who, despite the fact that he did an admittedly excellent job for the CAA, was hounded out of the agency in a manner to make any principled observer shudder. There was even an attempt to prove him insane.

This particular victim's experience has already adversely affected the Government's ability to acquire top-grade people. A number of his fellow graduates from Harvard Business School have turned down Government jobs for which they were highly qualified (and badly needed) after hearing of the CAA story. They were unable to stomach the risk of similar treatment. SCOTT F. RUNKLE.

Novocain Relief

When I read the story of December 17 on the use of novocain to ease the pain caused by gallstones, I said to my wife: "That's an excellent story. I wish we had more of them." I hope you agree and that you will give the person who wrote that story an opportunity to write more of them.

Germany And European Defense

The West has now agreed, although reluctantly, that western Europe is defensible only with full cooperation of Western Germany, which, with her military qualities must make some contribution to the mutual defense. The advantage in this would be the integration of German units within the framework of the western European organization, but not arming her as a military power.

The United States has proposed that 10 divisions of Germans be brought into the Atlantic defense force under the supreme commander. The French government this month compromised to accept German combat teams. The West Germans, both the Bonn government and the Socialist opposition, have made it abundantly clear that they demand equality with the rest of Europe. Russia, on the other hand, says that it would not tolerate German rearmament.

If West German military contingents are to be included in a collective security against communism, what additional sovereignty would have to be granted to the German federal government? Western Germany's security should be achieved by voluntary contribution to the defense of western Europe, rather than added political power which can be dangerous at this time. The economic and social order, and federal sovereign rights are being adequately safeguarded by the British, French and United States Control Commission, until such time that the German peace treaty is signed.

Russia's recent overtures, concerning a peace conference for Germany, although not fully comprehensible, have to be considered very carefully but not separately from the rest of the East-West problems. If all the zones of Germany were unified and the peace treaty concluded, with Russia agreeing to all the principles, it might well lead to an eventual police state under totalitarian control.

The present Soviet-sponsored "National Front" of the Soviet zone has inaugurated an aggressive campaign of propaganda to undermine the confidence of the people of Western Germany in their democratically appointed leaders, in their institutions, and in the purpose of the Western Allies. Their ultimate goal is the absorption of the whole of Germany into the Soviet orbit as a major step toward the political conquest of Europe by Russia.

In addition, the present Soviet regime sponsors the regular "People Police," a highly centralized force approaching 100,000 men, 50,000 of whom are the disguised "People's Army," the nucleus of a far larger force undergoing military and ideological (political-economic-cultural) training. As yet, there is no parallel to this in Western Germany.

The tripartite policy in Germany, on the other hand, follows a different set of principles as brought out recently by the United States high commissioner for Germany when he reminded the Germans and the world that "We Americans are not here exclusively to feed the German people and promote recovery. . . . Our main purpose is to help Germany achieve political recovery."

The quick pace of world events requires restatement and clarification of Allied policy for the defense of Europe, although the fundamentals have not changed.

If enough combat men, tanks, and aircraft are set up in Germany, it would assure the Germans that the war, if it comes, will be fought in Poland and not Germany.

Matter Of Fact

Christmas In America

CHRISTMAS is a good time to think about the American responsibility. At this time, nineteen and a half centuries ago, a light was lighted in a humble cow-byre that still shines over the whole world, calling all men to mercifulness and goodness of heart. And now, in our own time, almost the whole duty of preventing that light from being put out forever rests on the people of these United States.

If we do not acquit ourselves bravely and well, the new God-state will triumph in the world. This is a deity merciless as Moloch, served by a grim priesthood, buttressed on a bleak theology, tolerating no competing thought or worship to distract the minds of men from their harsh labors as state-slaves. Even today, the final crisis in the vast struggle between this new God-state and the free part of the world is rushing down upon us with gathering speed.

It is a curious reflection that if we in America fail now, the generation now being born will be the last trained in the Christian ethic, knowing the Christian story. To remake the past in its own ruthless image, is one of the tasks the God-state confers upon its priests. And if we now fail, the last, dim, precious memory will be fading from the last poor, once-free mind, just two millenia after Herod was troubled, and the shepherds saw the Star, and the Three Kings of the East made their hard, cold journey. After 2000 years, all will be darkness then, and the night of the soul, and the silence broken only by the crack of the lash.

SUCH IS THE FUTURE that menaces our children, and our children's children. One has seen that future already, in the chilly glitter of fear in the eye of a man, once brave, now wholly cowed, in Prague; in the children waiting to prostitute themselves for some synthetic nastiness that will fill their poor bellies, outside the tawdry food-store for party members in Leipzig; in the naked terror of the broken-bodied, half-crazed wretch who escaped from the secret police in Berlin. Those who have seen and understood that future all answer: "America cannot fail."

What has happened to America, one asks oneself, listening to the craven voices, the squalid little men who would throw away the future for an hour's partisan success, the trembling grave-diggers of freedom who would betray mankind for two more years' low taxes. And then one remembers what America is, and takes heart again.

The great land of broad valleys and proud mountains; the land's fat farms, its industry of infinite variety, its rich cities reaching toward the sky; the good life of this land, kindly, easy, pleasant and warm—all these flash through the mind. The great past rises up, the first corners clearing the forests to live a free life, the Nation begotten of a passion for freedom, its men fighting for freedom, its freedom beckoning millions to these shores. And then one sees, like a procession in the mind, the people of this land, children of latecomer and children of the old stock, poor and rich, worker and farmer, Northerner and Southerner and men of the Western plains, every man differing from his neighbor, yet all one people, bold, ingenuous, brave and free.

This is not the land, these are not the people, to heed the craven voices, to say farewell to all their greatness, to surrender and submit. All the clanking apparatus of an iron empire, all its many millions of slaves in uniform, all its menaces and threats, will not overwhelm this land nor terrify these people. Americans have fought before; they will fight again, that freedom, and mercifulness, and goodness of heart shall not perish from the face of the earth. It is meet, right and our problem and our bounden duty so to do, as the communion service says; and we shall do it, and we shall win.

LET THE AMERICAN who doubts America come forward and say so in plain words; he will soon hear his answer. Let the American who would surrender speak his wish in clear language; he will soon receive his punishment. In the present interlude of turmoil and confusion, these men may safely speak with concealed meanings. But in the testing time ahead, they will be shouted down.

In every contest between slave state and free, the freemen begin with disadvantages, and the defeatists mumble. But when this Nation is united by a common peril and a common faith, while it may lose the first battle, no power on earth can keep us from victory in the end.

These are things that have needed to be said. Having stepped from their right role to say them, these reporters now wish any reader who may have gone so far with this poor effort, a Merry Christmas, and a hopeful and courageous New Year.

Price Rollback

I am concerned about present talk of a rollback of prices to December 1 levels. In our economy official prices are not necessarily what they seem. Many industries, for example the electrical appliance industry, have official list prices which are not at all the prices that you find when you go out shopping. Commonly, the actual prices may be anywhere from 10 percent to 30 percent lower than official list prices.

To stabilize prices on electrical appliances, for example, at official list prices as of December 1 would in effect be a substantial price increase. This is true of many other lines of hard goods, of drugs, and in some instances, of apparel. It is sincerely to be hoped that price stabilization can and will take this situation into serious consideration.

A Communication

Now Is U. N.'s Time To Try for Peace

By Senator Frank P. Graham (D., N. C.)
Former President of the University of North Carolina

IN THE MIDST of the global gloom of the closing days of 1950 Christmas comes with its ray of hope in a darkening world. Nearly 2000 years ago a Child was born in a lowly manger in a little country in Asia near the sea which yet joins with hope the East and West. Glad tidings came in the darkness before the dawn. With the Child was born the hope of peace on earth and good will toward men. The Child became man and lived and died for the brotherhood of all men and the Fatherhood of one God. Jesus and the prophets and saints, East and West, taught the Golden rule and human brotherhood: one God, one family, and one world of freedom, justice, peace and good will among men, unfulfilled to this hour.

Graham

The Yearning of the Peoples for Peace

1. IN THE UNITED STATES:

In the United States today the mothers and fathers in homes, the sons and daughters who dream their youthful dreams of homes of their own, the people on farms, in factories, stores, mines, and upon the sea, the people in cities, towns, villages, and the countryside, in schools and churches, want peace. They would have peace, they are sure, if only the cruel dictators of the Soviet Union would stop their aggressive tyranny and let the people have peace.

2. IN THE SOVIET UNION:

In the Soviet Union, the mothers and fathers in homes, the sons and daughters, who dream their youthful dreams of homes of their own, the people on farms, in factories, stores, mines and upon the sea, in cities, towns, villages, and the countryside, want peace. They would have peace, they have been led to believe, if only the fascist warmongers in the United States would let the people have peace.

3. IN OTHER NATIONS:

In other nations of the earth the mothers and fathers in homes, the sons and daughters who dream their youthful dreams of homes of their own, the people everywhere as they work and love, dream and hope, want peace. They would have peace, hundreds of millions of them believe, if only the Soviet Union and the United States would let the people have peace.

4. THE PEOPLE OF ALL COLORS and Creeds, Race and Religions:

The yellow, brown, red, black and white peoples want peace. The Buddhists, Hindus, Shintoists, Moslems, Jews, Greek Orthodox, Roman Catholics, Protestants, believers and unbelievers, want peace. The people of North and South America, Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia and the islands of the oceans and seas, want peace. All the peoples of the earth, who, in this generation, have suffered through a world war, a world depression and another world war, yearn for freedom and security, justice and peace.

The Universal Yearning of the Peoples for Peace Confronted With the High Potentials of the World for War

AGAINST THIS TIME for universal good will, in the face of the universal desire of the peoples for peace, and despite the unresting efforts of the Government of the United States and other governments the nations are confronted with dictatorship, imperialism and aggression.

1. THE WAYS OF DICTATORSHIP:

The Communist dictatorship has broken treaties; blocked the unification of Germany and Korea; subjugated by methods of the police state nine nations and parts of two nations; sought to sabotage the recovery of Southern and Western European nations; stripped Manchuria, poisoned the minds of hundreds of millions of people with falsehoods and hate; crushed the freedom to struggle for freedom; enslaved increasingly more millions of people in enforced bondage than were ever held in slavery at any time in history; segregated 200 million people behind the Iron Curtain; vetoed the international control and inspection of atomic power; blocked the international efforts and procedures of the United Nations for peace; and has gone far in a program of aggression and imperialism for the domination of the world.

2. THE WAYS OF FREEDOM:

With all its unfair but decreasing discriminations, injustices, failures and frustrations of freedom and democracy, the United States has preserved the freedom to struggle for freedom by which more millions of Negroes in the last 85 years in the United States have made more progress than any like number of people in any like time in modern history, revealing, against many handicaps, the innate capacities of a great people for self-development in an advancing democracy; liberated the Philippines; has, against both the Dutch and Communist imperialists, thrown its weight on the side of the independence and freedom of the 70 million Indonesian people; has, against both the Dutch and Communist imperialists, favored the autonomy of the Indo-Chinese people; has championed or rejoined in the self-determination of peoples in Israeli and the Near East, in Southern Asia, Korea, West Germany and Japan; has helped toward the self-recovery of the people of Turkey, Greece, Italy, France, West Germany, northern and western Europe and Great Britain; offered to give up its then monopoly of atomic power for international control and inspection; helped to facilitate the procedures and cooperated with the purposes of the United Nations against aggression as the best hope of freedom and peace in the world.

3. NO APPEASEMENT OF AGGRESSION:

Standing on the brink of the abyss of another possible world war between dictatorship which, with all its pretenses, would crush the freedom to struggle for freedom, and the democracies, which, with all their faults, would preserve the freedom to struggle for freedom, some free nations are still torn by the opposite pulls of appeasement and resistance to aggression. In the present complex world situation resistance to aggression in Korea or anywhere may lead to global war. Appeasement of aggression leads no less surely and even more disastrously into another world war.

4. NOT BACKWARD FROM A DUNKIRK TO A MUNICH, but Forward with the United Nations for the Uultimate Triumphs of Its Principles:

In resisting aggression in Korea the United Nations risked the military disaster of a Dunkirk to avoid the moral disaster of a Munich. If the recently victorious United Nations forces should be driven off the peninsula, the way is not backward to Munich but forward with the United Nations for the ultimate triumph of freedom, self-determination of all peoples, justice and peace under the laws rather than by the wars of nations. In the present situation whether we appease or resist, drift or plunge, or stand aside in isolation, the world potentials are so heavily charged that a local spark may become a global conflagration.

In the global dilemma of the universal yearnings of the people for peace and the high potentials of the world for war, only through heroic efforts of the Government of the United States in cooperation with the other governments in the United Nations, persistent against great odds, can a way be found to make effective the people's passion for peace against the aggressors' will for war.

The Free Peoples must stand resolutely together against appeasement of aggressions and any surrender to the universal dominion of a world state.

Meantime Mobilization of the Free World for Collective Self-Defense of Human Freedom

MEANTIME THE UNITED STATES and all the nations of the free world, East and West, must mobilize their economic, military, human and spiritual resources for the cooperative self-defense of their democratic existence, the self-determination of peoples, and their commitments to the freedom of the human mind, the dignity of the human being and the moral autonomy of the human spirit against a most monstrous tyranny which seeks to subjugate all peoples in the expanding dominions of a world police state.

The Opportunity of the General Assembly of the United Nations

IN SUCH A COMPLEX and desperate situation, where may the people of the earth look for the implementation of their universal aspiration for peace? Not to the capital of any one or two nations! That way alone is the isolated way to war. Rather to the capital of all the nations. The way of international cooperation is the only way to enduring peace. The only international agency available for the balanced information and action of the peoples of all nations is the United Nations. With all its failures and frustrations, with all the need for amendment to its Charter for a federated world, the peoples of the earth still look in hope to the United Nations dedicated by the noble principles of its Charter to stopping aggression, preventing war, promoting freedom, and maintaining peace in the world.

1. THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY the only World Forum of All the Nations:

More democratically and organically the people now look to the General Assembly with new hope in the recently and overwhelmingly adopted procedures "for uniting for peace." In the General Assembly are represented 60 nations which include the overwhelming majority of the peoples of the continents and islands of the earth by their own self-determination.

In the midst of the almost unsolvable dilemmas on the edge of a world catastrophe, whose burdens are now heroicly borne by the statesmen of the free world, time does not wait for amendments to the Charter, for stronger ways, better days, more democratic governments, or nobler people. The people of the world, as imperfect as we all are in our human and inhuman ways, are the only people available in this fearful time. Now and soon is the only time left. The General Assembly is the only world forum of all the Nations. The Assembly of the delegates from 60 nations is the most representative of the organs of the United Nations, is not subject to the veto in its own jurisdiction, and is the only agency in existence in this confused and yet hopeful world which has a chanace of enlisting the attention of most of the peoples of the earth for making effective their hopes for peace.

2. A MAJORITY VOTE of Security Council on a Procedural Matter not Subject to the Veto can lift the dispute from the council agenda and free the Assembly to make recommendations:

It is recognized that, in accordance with Article 12 of the Charter, the General Assembly cannot make a recommendation concerning any matter on the agenda of the Security Council. Nevertheless, since putting a dispute on the agenda of the Council is a procedural matter not subject to the veto, a majority vote of the Council can remove a matter from the Council's agenda and thus make it a matter regarding which the Assembly can make recommendations.

3. THE RENVILLE PRINCIPLES (already approved by the United Nations in another situation; a possible starting point for the consideration of principles and procedures for the present situation):

Now is the time and the General Assembly is the agency to make findings and recommendations for the principles and procedures toward the settlement of a crucial dispute and prevent a total global war, which would engulf the peoples of the world in the killing of scores of millions of people across the earth and the fateful destruction of the civilization accumulated from all ages and inherited from all peoples. As a starting point of the discussions for the settlement of the dispute in Korea, the Renville principles suggest consideration of a cease-fire order, a military truce based on a demarcation line and demilitarized zones on each side of the line; and consideration of the principles for the negotiations of a political settlement based on such fundamental provisions as an interim government, civil liberties, free trade, transportation and communications, economic rehabilitation, plebiscites or other forms of free elections; the formation of a convention of popular representatives in proportion to the population, and the framing of a constitution for the permanent self-determination of all the Korean peoples in a free, united and independent Korean nation, under supervision of the United Nations, for the admission of Korea as a free and sovereign member of the United Nations. These Renville principles and procedures, or others found to be wiser and better adapted to meet the Korean situation, could be the ways and means of substituting ballots for bullets and of substituting law and the self-determination of peoples for war and the self-extermination of peoples.

4. THE REJECTION of Fair Principles and Open Procedures for the Self-Determination of People Would Reveal to the Peoples of the Earth the Designs of Dictators for Aggression and World Domination.

If, in the face of the publication of the findings and recommendations for the truce and the principles and procedures for the settlement of the international dispute, any nation which refuses substantially to accept them but determines heedlessly to go on its way of defiance, aggression, and war, would thereby make it dramatically known to the great majority of the peoples of the earth beyond reasonable question above the false propaganda of dictators, imperialists, and aggressors, which government is recklessly bent upon aggression and war for the domination of the world. Any such government, in flagrant disregard of the yearnings of the people for peace and in rejection of the recommendations of the only existing international agency based on full and open discussions in the only world forum, brands itself as an outlaw before the judgment bar of mankind and would have to take the consequences of the combined economic, political, military and moral self-defense of a free world in carrying out the principles and purposes of the United Nations as the best hope of fulfilling the yearning of the peoples for freedom and peace.

The Ultimate Triumph of the Sovereignty of the Moral Law Through International Cooperation by Which Dictators Must Fall, Empires Crumble, Aggressions Fail and Freedom Prevail in God's Good Time

UNDERGIRDING THE POWER of the free world and the principles of the United Nations would be the universal yearnings of the peoples of the earth for peace and the world-wide assertion of the moral sovereignty in the minds and hearts of the peoples as part of the structure of God's Universe. False propaganda in the face of the truth will eventually become as chaff which the wind driveth away. All peoples will yet rise in self-determination through the knowledge of the truth which will make them free. The light of liberty will yet shine through the iron curtain of men's minds. The warmth of human brotherhood will yet melt away the iron curtain of men's hearts. The people's hopes for freedom and peace still fly their flags high in the Western World and across the Eastern Seas. Against the ultimate sovereignty of the moral law which runs through the universe, the history of nations, and the minds and hearts of the people who yearn for freedom, justice, and peace, empires will crumble, dictators fall, and aggressors make war no more.

The Birth of the Child

WITH THE BIRTH of the Child the idea of the fatherhood of one God, the ultimate sovereignty of the moral law, and the brotherhood of all men, became flesh, lived among men, died by the authority of dictators, and rose again in spiritual power to resist aggression, tyranny, imperialism, injustice and exploitations, and to bring peace and brotherhood on earth in the great adventure of the human spirit in our earthly pilgrimage toward the Kingdom of God.

This is the day...

Surely in the march of civilization, it was inevitable that one day a year should be set apart from all others for the perpetuation of peace and good will to men.

Christmas has been given to us. Had it not been bestowed on us with its glorious traditions, then, in some other way, a Day would have been declared by someone, somewhere, for the purpose.

And we are glad that it gives us the opportunity to wish all our friends and acquaintances a full measure of joy at this time, and immeasurable hope for the coming year

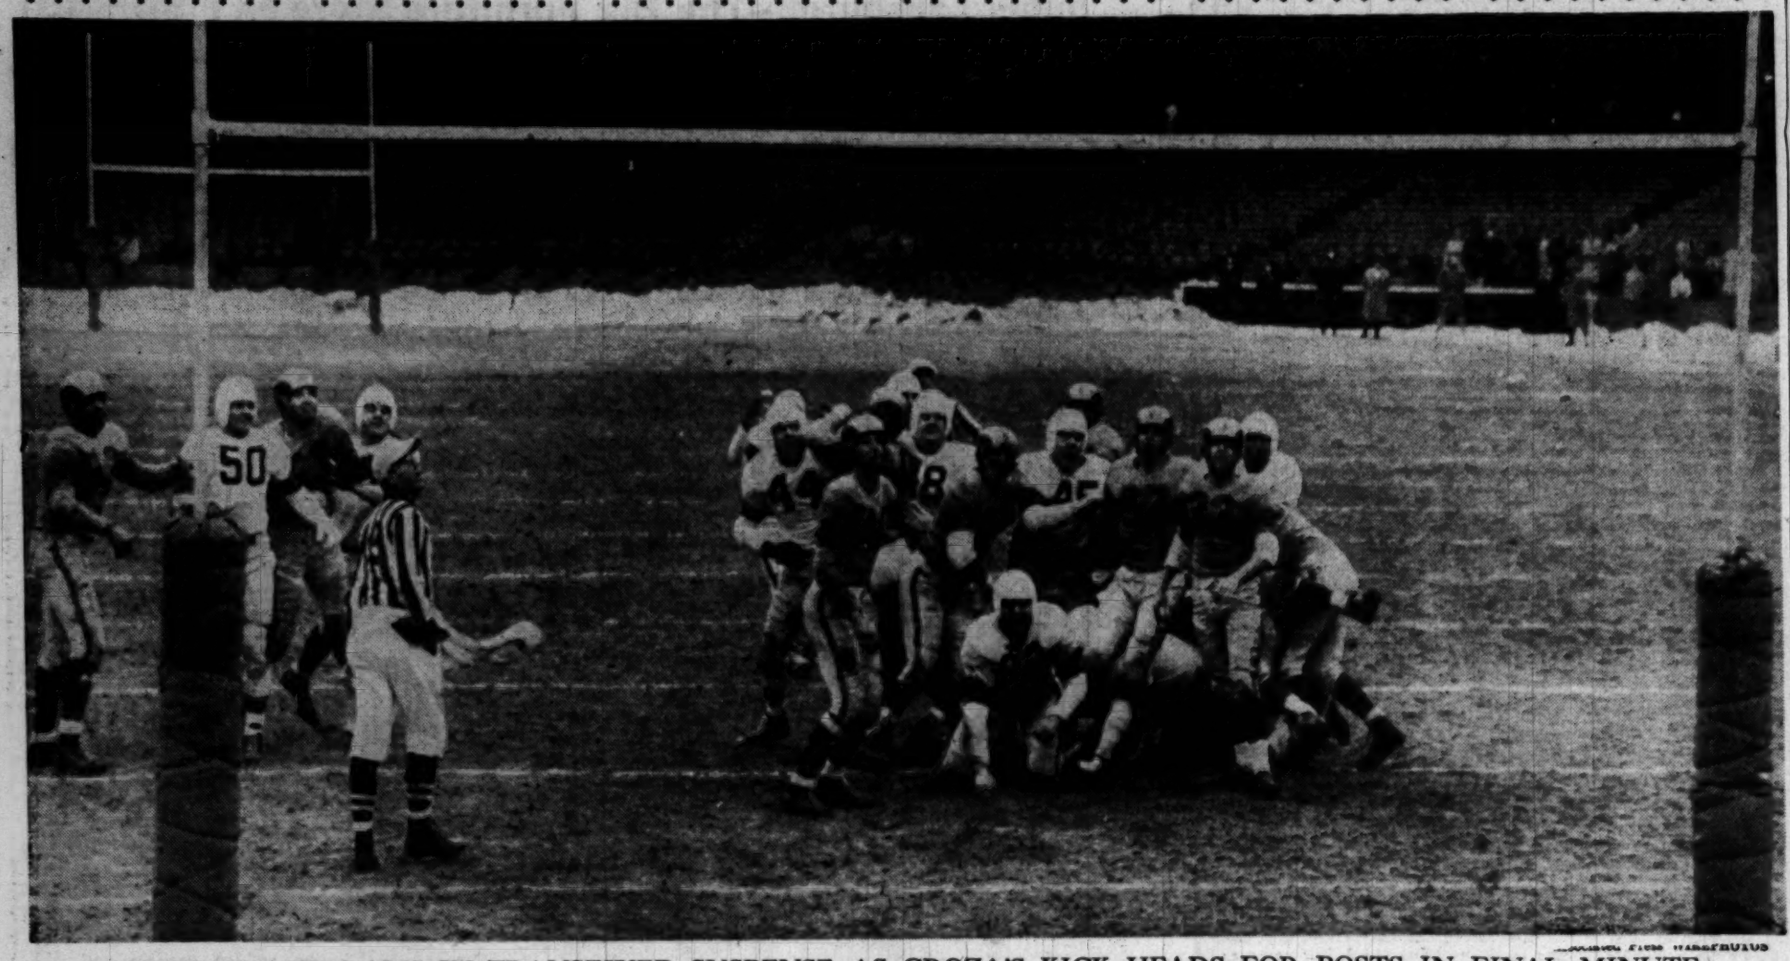
Groza Boots Browns to Title, 30-28, in Last Minute



BROWNS AND RAMS IN TRANSFIXED SUSPENSE AS GROZA'S KICK HEADS FOR POSTS IN FINAL MINUTE

Graham Hurls For 4 Scores In Defeat of Rams

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

CLEVELAND, Dec. 24.—Sixteen yards and 20 seconds away from a 1-point defeat, the Cleveland Browns today again turned to Lou Groza for help and again he came through, kicking a dramatic field goal to beat the Los Angeles Rams for the world's professional football championship, 30-28.

It was the second time in as many weeks that the Browns, climaxing their first year in the expanded National Football League, had to call on Groza in a moment of distress. Last week, he kicked a field goal in the last 58 seconds to enable the Browns to lick the New York Giants, 8-3, for the right to meet the Rams in football's world series today.

Ironically, Bob Waterfield missed a field goal from the 16-yard line in the second quarter when the Rams were leading, 14-7.

Otto Graham, who already had passed the Browns to four touchdowns, started the victory march by ripping off 15 yards on a keeper play through the big Rams' line. Graham, a magnificent figure in Cleveland's great victory, then unlimbered his passing arm again. On four pitches he covered 42 yards to set up the Groza kick.

Otto Gets Position

There were only 27 seconds left to play now and the ball was on the 11-yard line at a slight angle to the goal posts. Graham, trying to get better position for the Groza field goal attempt that everybody knew was coming, ran about three yards toward the center of the field on the next play to give Groza a perfect shot at his target.

The Browns, realizing that it was do or die, didn't even huddle. Instead, Tommy James dropped back to the 16-yard line, received the snap from Center Hal Herring, placed the ball down and Groza swung his big right foot into it. Right througn the middle went the ball and the Rams were licked.

On the first play after the kickoff, Warren Lahr intercepted a desperation Norm Van Brocklin pass just as the game-ending gun sounded. Thousands of half-frozen spectators swept down on the field, tearing down the goal posts and carrying the jubilant Brown players off the field on their shoulders.

The one they lavished most of their attentions on was not Groza and not Graham, the two big heroes. Instead, it was Hal Herring, the center whose bad snap in the second quarter prevented Groza from kicking the extra point that would have tied the game at 14-14.

And, late in the last quarter when the Rams were leading, 28-27 and had the Clevelanders on the Brown 21-yard line, Herring's error loomed awful big. Less than two minutes later, however, all was forgiven and Herring was just as big a hero as any of the conquering Clevelanders.

The victory, achieved on a concrete hard, but dry turf, was the eighth straight for the Browns who were beaten only by the Giants, and by them twice, in 19 games, including five preseason games.

And this was the team that at least one National Football League owner said couldn't win one game in the NFL after it had won the championship of the defunct All-America Conference all four years of its existence.

Groza, of course, was the last-second hero but Graham, the old Northwestern star, was the real Cleveland ace.

With 22 pass completions for 298 yards and another 99 yards running, Graham accounted for 397 yards today.

He had his greatest moments early in the fourth quarter shortly after the Rams had scored twice to bolt into a 28-20 margin.

He directed the Clevelanders on a 65-yard scoring march, passing 14 yards to Rex Bumgardner for the touchdown after picking

NO SANTA CLAUS? Why, Virginia. Don't you believe it for a moment, and pay no heed to those cynics among the older children in your neighborhood. They the merely passing through a phase. Their Daddies and Moms know there is a Santa, and so do I and all the other sportswriters.

December is merely Santa's busiest month. He's with us the year round. He comes in many forms and sizes, and only on Christmas Day does he wear those red knickers and pack that pack. Mostly, he just works with a wand.

POVICH

Those 3700 Midshipmen at the Naval Academy will tell you there's a Santa Claus, Virginia. For them, he whipped up a football team and a head coach that could beat Army for the first time in seven years. Santa fetched Army a good football team, too, but for Navy he delivered something super on a particular day.

Ray Scarborough's little girl knows there is a Santa Claus, Virginia, and so does her Daddy. Scarborough doesn't have to pitch for the second division White Sox any more. His gift was a nice fat contract with the rich Red Sox.

EZZARD CHARLES, the heavyweight champion, must always believe there is a Santa Claus. When he got his chance to fight for the undisputed title, it was wonderful. All he had to lick was a fat, over-age Joe Louis who was also ring-rusty and ripe to be plucked by the first good young fighter who came along. That was Charles.

And Mr. Happy Chandler, the baseball commissioner they tried to fire in St. Petersburg, discovered his own Santa Claus in the form of Clark Griffith, who save for the discrepancy in weight is not such a far-fetched stand-in. It is Griffith who is telling the club owners you-can't-do-this-to-Chandler, and is leading the fight for his re-election.

Griffith knows there is a Santa Claus, too, Virginia. His gift in 1950 was Irv Noren, one of the rookies of the year, who helped make the Nats a fair sort of ball team. And Santa apparently was working out of Cuba, too, because he fetched the Nats such as Conrado Marrerro and Sandy Consuegra at a time when they didn't know where their next winning pitcher was coming from.

WHEN IT CAME to the Kentucky Derby, Virginia, the Klebergs down in Texas were willing to believe by nightfall that there was indeed, a Santa. All that their horse, Middleground, had to beat was a faint-hearted favorite, the Californian Your Host, although they were given a tussle by the Virginian Hill Prince. And Arcaro rode Hill Prince as if Santa was also in the saddle.

Those New York Yankees, grown men, will tell you, too, that there is a Santa, Virginia. It wasn't one of the real good Yankee teams that won the pennant, but when it came to the World Series all they had to lick was a young team of Phillies with the jitters. And so the worst-hitting Yankee team in World Series history was able to mop up in four straight.

You'll never get Don Gehrmann to believe that there isn't a Santa Claus, Virginia. Ten months after two of the three judges said he had beaten in the Wanamaker Mile by Fred Wilt, the top brass of the A.A.U. decided he had run first, not second. Santa was whispering over their shoulders, Virginia.

SANTA CLAUS was a big help to the Redskins this year, Ginny. Heaven knows what a horrible time they might have had of it if Santa, or somebody in his image, had not brought the Baltimore Colts into the NFL. Thanks to two wins over the Colts, the Redskins won three games during the season.

To all the baseball owners, Santa Claus is probably taking the form of razor blades. They found a radio-video sponsor who was willing to pay $975,000 for the World Series rights, Virginia, and get the owners out from under their costly commitments to the players' pension fund.

Ask Ben Hogan about Santa, Ginny. Not so many months ago, he was in a Texas hospital wondering if he would ever play golf again while his friends were privately wondering if he would stay alive. He got well, Virginia, and came back to win the National Open as everybody hoped he would, though he was awfully tired and weak from the ordeal. Grown-ups know the most about Santa Claus, Virginia.

Ray Robinson Fights German

FRANKFURT, Germany, Dec. 24 (AP).—Germany will get its first look at a world ring champion in action tomorrow when Welterweight King Ray Robinson meets Hans Stretz in a 10-round non-title engagement.

Stretz is a 22-year-old former middleweight champion of Germany. He recently lost his crown to Peter Mueller of Cologne.

The bout will be the fifth and last for Robinson on his fighting tour of Europe.

D. C. Boxers Volunteer For Benefit

An all-star lineup of the best in District fight talent is likely for the benefit card for the family of Sonny Boy West at Uline Arena January 4.

Among the local top-notchers who have volunteered their services for the card are Julian Keene, District light-heavyweight champ; Little Dynamite, Jimmy Cooper and former All-Army middleweight king Johnny Pratt.

Art Bethea and Holly Mims, both middleweights, and Gene Smith, featherweight, are other Washingtonians with large followings who have offered to fight on the card free.

All proceeds from the program will be turned over to the widow of Sonny Boy West, probably the greatest fighter developed in Washington.

West died last Thursday, 22 hours after his knockout by Percy Bassett at St. Nicholas Arena in New York City.

Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn had hoped to have Bassett head the card but Bassett already had signed the contract to fight in Madison Square Garden on January 4.

Goldie last night said he is still negotiating for several "name" fighters, but added that he is prepared to give the local favorites every break.

Tickets for the benefit are priced at $1.50, $2.60 and $3.90 and will be placed on sale shortly.

Shoemaker Rides 8 Today

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 24 (AP).—Willie Shoemaker is looking to Santa Claus and his own riding ability to give him top ranking among jockeys of the Nation at the Fair Grounds here tomorrow.

His manager, Harry Sibert, said tonight that Willie will ride in all eight races tomorrow in his drive to beat the mark of 371 winners ridden this season by Joe Culmone.

Shoemaker has ridden 367 winners this season and with four wins tomorrow would tie Culmone.

But even a winner in each race would not give him a tie yet with the all-time record of 388 winners in a season set by Walter Miller in 1906.

During the past week Shoemaker had 26 mounts and won 10 times. He was second four times and third four times.

After this week's racing here he plans to fly to Mexico and ride 12 mounts at Agua Caliente on December 31.

Caps Hit Road For Tough Bill

Coach Bones McKinney led his cellar-dweling Washington Caps off on a rugged holiday road tour yesterday but the optimistic Bones professed to be far from discouraged.

"We have lost some tough games," said McKinney, "and we've beaten ourselves several times. However, we will start working together soon and I hope we are in winning stride by the time we get back to Uline's against the Baltimore Bullets January 3."

The Caps face the rugged Minneappolis Lakers and big George Mikan on their home court tonight.

Washington next faces the Olympians in Indianapolis Tues-

Whether Brown would consider a bid to Southern California is problematical, but close friends believe he would at least discuss an offer from Ohio State where he coached in 1941, '42, '43. His contract with the Browns has five years to go, but it's a one-way deal which Brown could erase on his own volition.

Paul Explains Strategy

Browns' Win Tribute To Coach Brown—Bell

CLEVELAND, Dec. 24 (AP).—Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League—a player, coach and commissioner for twoscore years—pulled no punches today as he termed the Cleveland Browns' 30-28 victory over the Los Angeles Rams, "The greatst football game I've ever seen."

"In Los Angeles," the Commissioner said, "we probably have the finest personnel any professional club ever boasted. But in the Cleveland Browns we probably have the most intensely-coached club in history.

"This was an instance in which a magnificently - coached club, which just wouldn't give up, overcame great opposition. The Browns overlook no detail in coaching or preparation for a game—they are ready for anything, and they have that extra something of which champions are made.

"I would like to pay tribute to Joe Stydahar, the Los Angeles coach, who did a great job in his first year as head of the Rams. We'll be hearing from him in the future. It was unfortunate that one of these two truly great teams had to lose."

Coach Paul Brown of the victors, answering scribes who wondered why the Browns didn't go for a touchdown in the waning 20 seconds, said:

"We had the ball, with a first down, on the Rams' 12, but the clock was running out. We have the greatest place-kicker in the world in Lou Groza. So we sent in word to run one play to the right, with Quarterback Otto Graham handling the ball, to get it right in front of the goal posts.

"And speaking of those three points, I'd like to pay tribute to Ernie Godfrey of Ohio State, the finest teacher of place-kicking I've ever known. Ernie taught Lou the art of place-kicking when Groza was a Freshman at Ohio State, and I'll be eternally grateful to him for it."

Groza, after learning to place-kick under Godfrey's totelage, entered the service and then joined the Browns on his return, passing up a collegiate career.

Colleges Beckon Brown

CLEVELAND, Dec. 24 (AP).—Coach Paul Brown, who has led his Cleveland Browns to five straight professional league championships is just celebrating tonight.

"Precision Paul," as he has been nicknamed by practically everyone who has watched his high-geared teams in action isn't thinking—tonight—of shifting to a college coaching job.

He's been mentioned for the vacant Ohio State, Minnesota and Southern California berths, resigned recently by Wes Fesler, Bernie Bierman and Jeff Cravath.

"I haven't been contacted relative to the Minnesota job," Brown said, "and I really don't expect to be. Just now we're so busy celebrating our win over Los Angeles that we're thinking of nothing else."

Even Joe Page Was Moved by Pro Thriller

CLEVELAND, Dec. 24 (AP).—"Those Cleveland Browns just wouldn't say they were licked."

Those words by Browns' tackle coach Wilbur Ewbank came as close as any could to describing in one sentence today's thrill-charged National Football League championship game.

The suspense lasted right up to the last 20 seconds when Lou Groza booted the short field goal that gave Cleveland a 30-28 victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

"Honestly, I wasn't nervous," Groza said in the dressing room. "Not any more than last week." (His two field goals provided the Browns their 8-3 victory over the Giants here last Sunday).

Then Groza noticed Joe Page, New York Yankee relief pitcher standing nearby. Pointing to him, "The Toe" observed:

"You never get nervous in a spot like that, do you Joe?"

Page's answer was: "The hell you don't."

"This one will be remembered a long time," an emotionally exhausted Paul Brown declared. The champions' coach added.

North-South All-Stars to Play Tonight

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 24 (AP).—Hand-picked college football players from the North and South meet here tomorrow night in Mahi Shrine Temple's third annual all-star charity game in the Orange Bowl Stadium.

A crowd of 40,000 or more is expected to see the contest, with proceeds going to the Shrine's crippled children fund.

Each 30-man squad will be seeking the edge in games. Miami Coach Andy Gustafson's team won the opener, 24-14, and Yale Coach Herman Hickman's North squad won last year, 20-14. This game is rated a toss-up.

Each side boasts a glittering array of stars from more than a score of colleges in the South, East and Middlewest.

The South will count on the passing of John (Model T) Ford of Hardin-Simmons, the running of John Dottley of Ole Miss and the receiving of C. P. Youmans of Duke.

Hickman Has Army Stars

Georgia Tech's Bobby Dodd, who has handled the South squad while Gustafson was busy preparing his University of Miami team for its Orange Bowl game with Clemson, also has a wealth of other material, in the backfield and on the line.

The South's backs include Tom Lucia of Louisville, Wade Stinson of Kansas, Darrell Meisenheimer of Oklahoma A & M, Bobby North of Georgia Tech, Angus Williams of Florida, Bishop Strickland of South Carolina, Dean Davidson of Vanderbilt, John Idzik of Maryland, Ebert van Buren of Louisiana State and Pat Field of Georgia.

Hickman's starting backfield is expected to be made up of John Miller of Northwestern, Reds Bagnell of Pennsylvania, Stu Tisdale of Yale and Jeff Fleischmann of Cornell.

Others in the North's backfield squad include Frank Miller of Cornell, Jack Martin of Army, Dick Gabriel of Lehigh, James Cain of Army, Carl Taseff of John Carroll, Bill Dechard of Holy Cross, Bill Roberts of Dartmouth, Gil Stephenson of Army, Bob Radcliff of Wisconsin and Dick Doheny of Fordham.

Turner's Mat Card Completed

The wrestling show at Turner's Arena next Wednesday night was completed last night with the addition of a two-man team battle and a 30-minute bout.

Heading up the card is a co-feature in which Lord Carlton grapples with Roland Meeker and Nell Stewart, of Birmingham, Ala., faces Mars Bennett, of Detroit, Mich.

And the 'Toe' Reciprocates

Groza Was Great, Graham Says

By Bob Morison

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 24 (U.P.)—Lou (The Toe) Groza, Cleveland's kicker de luxe, kissed his shoe today in mute thanks for a tight-squeeze victory and championship.

Pushed and happily pummelled from one side of the dressing room to the other, the perspiring 235-pound Groza, whose field goal in the final 20 seconds gave the Browns a 30-28 triumph over the Los Angeles Rams, along with the National Football League championship, wearily accepted all congratulations.

He grinned weakly, sighed heavily several times, and then kissed his shoe as teammates yelled delirious approval.

"You were great Groza, just great," thundered passing star Otto Graham.

"You were all right yourself," he replied to the tuckered out Graham, who was gasping and spitting blood.

Coach Paul Brown, on the receiving end of his fifth straight professional grid title, still showing the numbing effects from the 25-degree temperature, hollered:

"What the hell was the final score?"

Standing in the middle of a pile of equipment, Brown piped up: "Did you ever see one as rugged as that?"

Satisfied with the outcome, Brown, whose teams had swept to four previous titles in the defunct All-American conference, suddenly blurted:

"Maybe, it's better to be lucky than good. I've got the gamest bunch of ball players in the business."

No one challenged his statement as the carefree Browns celebrated Christmas one day early.

Forgettinng victory for just a brief moment, Cleveland players silently bowed their heads in the dressing room for prayerful thanksgiving on their Christmas Eve triumph.

Brown, however, didn't overlook the valiant battle put up by the defeated Los Angeles Rams.

"We played a magnificent team," he said.

And Graham added, "Either team could have won."

It was a different story in the Rams' dressing room. No one said much and head coach Joe Stydahar, mumbling through stiff lips and blurred eyes, said softly:

"The Browns are a great team."

Quarterback Bob Waterfield stared emptily into space. Nearby, end Tom Fears slumped on a bench and kicked idly at the floor.

Everywhere in the room, defeat stuck hard in everyone's throat.

St. Louis Flyers Nip Hershey Bears, 2-1

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 24 (AP).—The St. Louis Flyers kept the Hershey Bears from regaining the Eastern Division lead in the American Hockey League race today with a 2-1 victory over the Bears.

It boosted the Flyers to a last-place tie with the idle Indianapolis Caps in the Western Division.

Wildcats Win But Dislike Slowdown

By Norman Miller

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (U.P.).—Rip-roaring Adolph Rupp, coach of Kentucky's top-ranked national basketball powerhouse, sizzled today over the slow-down tactics employed by St. John's of Brooklyn, which made us look bad, even in victory."

The unbeaten Wildcats, slowed down to a walk for nearly three-quarters, finally broke up eighth-ranked St. John's possession game and spurted to their sixth straight victory, 43 to 37, last night at Madison Square Garden.

"We're a much better team than that," fumed Rupp. "They made us look bad by playing possession basketball. I can see why Frank McGuire (St. John's coach) played it that way, but I don't like that kind of a game. And I don't think the fans do either.

"Why, I wouldn't even show the movies of that game back home," Rupp added. "What's the use of showing the alumni pictures of a bunch of guys standing still?"

Zawoluk Loss Hurts

Whether or not Rupp likes their tactics, the Redmen from Broklyn gave the formidable Wildcats a tough battle, until Zeke Zaklouk, St. John's six-foot-six center, was removed for a rest after picking up four personal fouls near the seven-minute mark of the second half with Kentucky leading, 23 to 22.

The Wilcats, led by Shelby Linville and Frank Ramsey, took advantage of the break to open a 36-to-26 lead within the next six minutes and then beat off a desperate St. John's rally to clinch victory. Seven-foot Bill Spivey paced Kentucky with 15 points.

Second-ranked Bradley, fourth-ranked Oklahoma A. & M., and fifth-ranked Indiana also preserved their undefeated records last night. The Braves from Peoria, Ill., walloped Duke, 93 to 58, for their ninth straight triumph; Oklahoma Aggies also made it nine in a row by beating California, 58 to 46, and Indiana won the Hoosier classic tournament by topping Notre Dame, 64 to 56, for its sixth in a row.

In other key intersectional games, Utah trimmed St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, 70 to 57; Iowa beat UCLA, 80 to 63; Ohio State knocked thirteenth-ranked St. Louis University from the unbeaten ranks, 65 to 55; Wyoming made it nine straight victories by drubbing Oregon for the second night in a row, 73 to 55; Minnesota upset Oklahoma, 49 to 42; NYU swamped Vanderbilt, 87 to 56, and Oregon State beat Pittsburgh, 53 to 34.

SMU Upsets Texas

Southern Methodist won the all-college round-robin tournament at San Antonio, Tex., by edging Texas, 52 to 50, on a field goal by Derrel Murphy with 15 seconds left to play, while Bowling Green won the Kenty State invitation tournament by beating Miami of Ohio, 53 to 48.

Six regional tournaments, headed by the Sugar Bowl event at New Orleans, Dec. 29 and 30, highlighted the coming week's Christmas vacation program.

Kentucky, Bradley, St. Louis and Syracuse will compete in the Sugar Bowl tournament.

Dates and sites of other tournaments are: The Dixie Classic, Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 28 to 30; Big Seven, Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 27 to 30; All-College tourney, Oklahoma City, Dec. 27 to 29; Skyline Tournament, Denver, Dec. 26 to 29, and Los Angeles Invitation, Dec. 26 to 28.

HERE'S A FULLBACK—Los Angeles Ram Dick Hoerner rams his way for his team's second touchdown in the pro championship game yesterday in Cleveland. It was one of two scored by hard-charging Hoerner who picked up 86 yards in 24 tries up two key first downs during the drive on quarterback sneaks.

BROWNS—From P. 10

Browns Beat Rams On Groza's Kick, 30-28

Later, in the waning seconds of the game, the great Graham passed and ran the Brownies into position for Groza's kick.

Lavelli Scores Two

In addition to Bumgardner, Graham threw a 31-yard touchdown pass to Dub Jones and two other scoring passes to end Dante Lavelli, one for 36 yards and one for 39 yards.

Groza also kicked three extra points to account for Cleveland's other points.

The Rams, directed by Bob Waterfield, who threw one touchdown pass—on the first play of the game, scored twice in the first quarter and added two more touchdowns in the thrilling third quarter to make their great bid for an upset victory. The Browns were 4-point favorites.

Waterfield, who played every second on offense except the last play of the game, moved the Rams 313 yards on 18 completions in 32 attempts, the same number of passes Graham tried.

Waterfield's first play of the game was his best—an 82-yard touchdown play to Glen (Mr. Outside) Davis. Davis caught the ball on the Ram 35 and ran 65 yards for a touchdown after Halfback Tom James of the Browns slipped on the frozen field trying to tackle him.

Waterfield kicked the extra point and the Rams led, 7-0, with only 19 seconds of the game played. The Browns matched that, moving 70 yards after the next kickoff with Graham arching a touchdown pass to Jones. Groza's kick tied it and the fans settled back to see the rest of the thriller.

Midway the period, the Rams took a 14-7 lead, moving 80 yards on seven plays with Fullback Dick Hoerner, who scored twice, going over from three yards out. It remained 14-7 until shortly before intermission when Graham hit Lavelli for a touchdown.

Herring's bad snap from center prevented Groza from attempting to convert and the Browns trudged to their dressing room at intermission trailing 14-13.

In the middle of the third quarter, however, they took the lead for the first time, moving 67 yards on five plays for a touchdown.

Big Marion Motley, whom the Rams held to nine yards on six rushes, got 11 on the first clip to start it. Graham passed 27 yards to Gillom and then 39 more to Lavelli for a 20-14 Cleveland lead.

But that didn't last long as the Rams, switching from an air attack to running, went 71 yards to grab a 21-20 advantage. Dick Hoerner, who carried 11 times during the move, required three whacks through the tough Browns' line to go over from three yards out for the touchdown.

Then disaster almost overtook the Browns. On the first play after the kickoff, Motley, trapped at the 20-yard line, started running toward his own goal. When he had retreated to his own 6-yard line Motley fumbled and End Larry Brink recovered and ran over the goal line for another Los Angeles touchdown and a 28-20 Rams' lead.

On the last play of the period, Warren Lahr intercepted a Waterfield pass, one of five Waterfield had intercepted, to start the Browns on their 65-yard trip which the Graham-to-Bumgardner touchdown pass ended.

Now it was 28-27, Los Angeles. The Browns got another chance on the next series of downs when Waterfield had his fifth pass intercepted, but the Clevelanders booted that opportunity away when Graham fumbled on the Ram 24.

A few moments later, as snow began to fall, the Browns began to move. This time there was no fumble, just one Graham pass after another—four in a row. Soon, they were on the 10-yard line and the next thing you saw was the foot of the great Groza swinging into the ball for the game-winning field goal.

And it looked just that easy the way the Browns did it.

Six Straight Victories

W. Va. Only Unbeaten Five in Conference

By Robert Moore

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 24 (AP).—West Virginia's Mountaineers were the only remaining basketball team with an unblemished record in the Southern Conference today.

Not only were the Mountaineers boasting a spotless record with their six triumphs. They are leading the league, too, with four victories.

North Carolina State, North Carolina and Duke, all unbeaten a week ago, have tumbled into the defeated class.

With the layoff for the Christmas holidays, this question arose in the minds of the other 16 quintets observing West Virginia's surge:

Are the Mountaineers going to prove troublemakers their first season as a member of the conference?

Brown's a Freshman

Robert (Red) Brown, currently in his freshman year as coach at West Virginia, won't answer that question—directly. Though he may be a freshman, he still knows the answers most coaches give when somebody asks them if there's any chance they might knock off the circuit power, in this case North Carolina State.

Brown merely says:

"We lack experience more than anything else. All of our starting lineup are juniors. In fact, we have only two seniors on the squad. And let no one think we are underestimating the caliber of conference competition we must face in January and February. We may be lucky to break even once we take to the road."

Workman Brilliant

As point-producers, Brown admits the Mountaineers are pretty sharp. Their big fellow is skyscraper Mark Workman, a 6-foot, 1-inch center, who has poked in 172 points in six games.

Against George Washington, Workman shattered his own scoring record with a 44-point performance.

Brown says the Mountaineer's big weaknesses are their ball handling and rebound work, particularly on offense. He claims the teams' fast break has functioned only in spurts. But Brown hopes to correct "these flaws" during the holiday schedule break.

Whitfield Leads Team at Auckland

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Dec. 24 (AP).—Mal Whitfield, Olympic 800-meter champion, who has been flying with Uncle Sam's Air Force in Korea, heads the United States track team that will compete this week in the Canterbury Centennial games.

Whitfield, recently recalled from service, will compete with Jamaica's Herb McKenley, world record holder in the 440, in the middle distance events.

The festival will open with swimming and cycling contests Tuesday, to be followed by track and field competition the next three days.

Bill Bennings Says:

DEAR FOLKS:

AT CHARLES TOWN.

I don't know what the sentiment is elsewhere but the majority of horsemen and jockeys here are pulling for Willie Shoemaker to beat out Joe Culmone in the national jockey race. Culmone was a fairhaired boy in Maryland piling up winners while Shoemaker was on the west coast hucking many of the nation's top riders. Now the shoe is on the other foot. Culmone is in Florida with a substantially improved saddle opposition. Shoemaker crossed him up by going to New Orleans where riding rivals are less impressive. Had Culmone gone to California and repaid Shoemaker's eastern visit, chances are Willie would have met him head and head again at Tropical Park. Merry Christmas to all. See you on the rail.

BILL.

ammunition, clothing and so forth, had more than quadrupled; that if civilians were cut back soldiers would have to be taken from their regular work and assigned to civilian jobs.

WORK DAY: On this Christmas Day more Federal employes are working than on any Christmas since 1945. Scores of defense offices are being manned today by skeleton staffs to keep communications open to the world hot spots. Those who work today are supposed to be paid double time for it.

CIO: Its Government Workers Union made a recent survey among its members here on pressing employe problems and this is the order in which they voted:

(1) pay raise; (2) fair employment practices; (3) Whitten rider; (4) leave provisions; (5) reemployment rights; 6) promotions from within; (7) efficiency ratings; (8) individual grievances; (9) reductions in force, and (10) overtime pay.

The union hopes to spark a drive in Congress next month to get the Whitten rider repealed. The rider requires the Gov't to make most personnel actions on a temporary basis. The Administration also would like to get rid of the rider.

AGRICULTURE: Employes who have retired recently are: Gertrude B. Blake, Eleanor B. Couch, Vera M. Farrell, John A. Fischer, James W. Kelly, Charles T. Smith, Joseph H. Stevenson, Lisle Thomas, Freeman Weiss, and William E. Laughlin.

ROUND-UP: Regular postal employes who are assigned to work today will have their choice of either overtime pay or compensatory time off . . . The Nat'l Rural Letter Carriers Ass'n has brought its vice president, Bun Raley, here from Texas to help on its legislative program . . . The independent Nat'l Federation of Federal Employes has written the President to urge him to consider pay boosts for Federal workers.

Police Seek Salesmen of Forged Passes

Members of the police check and fraud squad set out yesterday to round up a ring of salesmen wanted for distributing forged Capital Transit passes which a young artist and his wife were caught manufacturing Saturday night.

Believing that the salesmen would call for the next week's stock, police set a trap at the couple's home at 5410 Nash st. ne., just over the District line in Maryland.

Apparently the word got around that the Nash st. residence was "hot," police said, and none of the salesmen showed up.

Meanwhile, the arrested pair, John Jackson, 28, and his wife, Ethel, 26, were released yesterday under $2000 and $1000 bond, respectively. They will have a hearing January 17.

Jackson, a former Government Printing Office employe, started by tracing the Capital Transit passes for himself last January, police said.

It worked so well he went into mass production, police said, and built up a lucrative business selling the passes for $1.25.

Woman Struck By Freight Train North of Luray

LURAY, Va., Dec. 24 (Special)—A 23-year-old woman, carrying home a Christmas tree, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when struck by a freight train at Vaughan's Summit, six miles north of Luray.

Admitted to Page Memorial Hospital at Luray with a fractured skull and possible chest injury, she is Jane Alice Presgrave of nearby Rileyville, Va.

Authorities said she was walking along a side track with her mother, Mrs. Virgil Presgrave, when she was struck by a Norfolk and Western train enroute from Hagerstown, Md., to Shenandoah, Va. The train had pulled on to the side track to let another train go by, authorities said.

Battle Puts Civil Defense Ahead of School Aid

Virginia Governor Cites Improvements In Educational Position in 1950

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 24 (AP). — School improvements, the basis of Gov. John Stewart Battle's 1949 election campaign in Virginia, will be subordinate to the State's civil defense program as the major concern of his second year in office, Battle said today.

"Civil defense," he said, "will take the right-of-way over everything. I won't hesitate to use all my powers in this cause."

What are the school construction prospects in 1951? Recently, perhaps as a result of Federal curbs on home building credits, construction bids have been generally reasonable, firm and stable, the Governor reported. His policy will be to go ahead with construction until one of three things happens: Federal restrictions make it impractical or impossible, or he feels it would hamper the war effort, or costs get too high.

Battle also emphasized he still regards the State grants as an emergency expedient — that financing schools construction is still primarily a local responsibility, and he doesn't want the State to assume it.

As Battle recalled it, his campaign for Governor had been built around plans to improve Virginia's public schools—by new school buildings, better compensation for teachers, and a stronger emphasis on the fundamentals.

"Looking back, I think we've made pretty good progress in all those fields," Battle said.

The Assembly quickly enacted Battle's 45-million-dollar program of State grants to cities and counties for school construction. Thereby, for the first time in Virginia history, the State directly subsidized school construction.

The Assembly voted raises for school teachers, but not as much as a surprisingly strong minority bloc in the House of Delegates wanted, and not without a prolonged struggle that put the schools-conscious Battle administration in the position of opposing and defeating an additional one-million-dollar appropriation to increase the pay of experienced teachers.

The Assembly also adopted Battle's recommendation to increase teacher retirement benefits, and set up a commission to work on a fundamental program of education. It rejected one change urged by Battle, in the method of choosing local school boards.

'Flexibility' In Court Cases Is Sought Here

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The judges of District Court are going to ask the incoming Congress to give the 18-to-21-year-old criminals of Washington an "even break."

It is the hope of the jurists that Congress will apply the Federal Youth Corrections Act to Washington. This is the law which allows Federal judges to sentence offenders up to 21 years of age to a screening agency, and to allow flexible institutional treatment.

At present, Washington and Alaska are excluded from the act because of fiscal considerations.

In disclosing the plan to seek congressional action, Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws of District Court emphasized that he has long felt that sentencing procedure here is inadequate, especially for young criminals.

He pointed out that there are many cases where the courts find themselves in a dilemma: cases where the offense and the defendant are such that probation is not called for, but where confinement in a penitentiary will make the youths into hardened criminals.

Probation officers do not have the time, he said, to make the detailed investigation necessary in these instances. And judges, with a heavy docket, often must send a man to prison after seeing him for a total of 30 seconds. This can be observed any Friday at District Court.

"Judges of this court feel that we would not be doing our full duty if we didn't strive to have the Youth Corrections Act applied here. We must see that the youths of Washington get an even break," he said.

Under the measure, the task of making the punishment fit the offender is left to a Federal Youth Correction Board composed of the director of the Bureau of Prisons and other presidential appointees.

Judges keep the power to pass specific sentences on youths, but the judges are also allowed to sentence defendants to the custody of the board instead of to prison.

Then, the youths go to a classification center for study of capacity, traits, record and makeup to discover, if possible, the reasons for the delinquency.

The board can place the youths on probation, send them to a farm, camp, hospital, training school or prison.

He pointed to his right foot. In his left foot, the bone was broken by a machine-gun bullet.

"They took us by jeep-ambulance to an air base and flew us to Japan. Then it was Wake, Pearl Harbor, the States, Westover Field (Mass.) this morning, and then home."

Lowry, who joined the Marines two years ago, said:

"The Chinese attacked us on the morning of November 27," he said. "Our rifles were frozen, and about 1500 Chinese had crept up on the hill we were holding. There were only 40 of us and we had to get out."

Lowry's sister, Mrs. Mary Sue Butt, 22, of Fairfax, interrupted.

"We sent his Christmas gifts to him over there," she said. "We prayed, and prayed every night that he would be all right."

"This is the most wonderful Christmas I ever had," Mrs. Lowry said.

Alexandria Council Due to Pass Record Budget on Tuesday

Alexandria's City Council is scheduled to take final action Tuesday night on a record 1951 budget calling for expenditures of about $4,831,322.

The budget represents an increase of nearly $600,000 over the current year's total, despite the fact that it no longer includes the two-cent-per-pack cigarette tax, originally proposed by City Manager W. Guy Ancell. The council voted two weeks ago to repeal the tax and is slated to vote again Tuesday for final passage of the repealing ordinance.

Although the budget is at an all-time high, it calls for a 15-cent reduction in the local property tax rate of $2.75 on each $100 valuation.

Because of the council's action in voting to repeal the cigarette tax, city officials said yesterday they still do not know the exact total of the new budget. It will, however, be about $150,000 lower than the originally proposed total of $4,981,322.

To help offset loss of revenue from the cigarette tax, Ancell proposes to borrow about $90,000 which originally was to have been raised by budget revenues, he said. The sum is part of the cost of a new incinerator the city expects to build in 1951.

Expenditures of some city departments also will have to be trimmed, Ancell said.

Among major items in the proposed budget are $1,212,515 for the operation of public schools; $335,892 for operation of the police department; $304,306 for public welfare; $237,000 for new construction; $222,995 for the fire department; $102,117 for recreation and an outlay of $569,338 for debt service on bond issues floated for previous public works projects.

The budget also calls for expenditures of $611,000 for a varied program of capital improvements.

Red Cross Seeks More Blood for Wounded

The wounded who will spend Christmas lying in Korean hospitals and emergency stations need blood from home.

On the feast of good will toward men, the Red Cross is appealing for more blood donors.

Anyone can give a Christmas gift that may save lives—yet costs nothing.

Donors are urged by the Washington Regional Blood Center to call RE. 8300 for an appointment to give blood and help fill the 7000 pints-a-month quota of civilian and defense need for this region.

The appointment of Dr. Kenneth R. Nelson as Medical Director-Administrator of the Regional Blood Center was announced yesterday by John Clifford Folger, chairman of the District Red Cross chapter.

Dr. Nelson, who joined the Red Cross Washington Regional Blood Program in 1948 as head physician, will supervise technical and administrative phases of the work in his new post.

Last week, the Regional Blood Center, 1730 E st. nw., distributed a total of 831 pints of blood to hospitals in the District, and communities covered by the Bloodmobile in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. Of this, 531 pints were distributed in the District; 159 in Virginia; 117 in Maryland, and 24 in West Virgiina.

With the increased demands for blood by the Department of Defense, and the continued need of civilian hospitals, Dr. Nelson said a second Bloodmobile will be in use after January 1, and additional beds will be added to the Washington center.

Scheduled visits for the Bloodmobile now in operation are: Waldorf, Md., at the Elementary School Tuesday, Dec. 26 from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.; Hagerstown, Md., at St. John's Parish House, S. Potomac st., Wednesday, Dec. 27, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., and at the Naval Research Laboratory on Thursday, Dec. 28 from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Donors in the vicinity of Walter Reed Hospital are urged to visit the newly-established Red Cross Blood Center there.

Case of Woman Found Dead in Bed Investigated

Police and the coroner's officer are investigating the death of Mrs. Conita McKinney, 41, who was found dead in bed at 2515 K st. nw., at 1:50 p. m. yesterday.

Police entered the apartment when notified by friends Mrs. McKinney could not be reached by telephone.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald will perform an autopsy today. Mrs. McKinney's husband, Pvt. James E. McKinney, an MP at Fort Myer, was on duty when his wife was found, police said.

11 Navy Employes Turn Ideas Into Cash

Pedestrian's Death Pushes Traffic Toll Above 1949's

Mrs. DeVaughn, 70, Struck Saturday By Truck; 6 Hurt In 4-Car Crash

DISTRICT TRAFFIC TOLL:
1950 deaths to date..... 72
1949 deaths to date..... 67
Total 1949 death toll..... 71

With a holiday week left to go, the District's 1950 traffic deaths yesterday surpassed the total for all of 1949.

Mrs. Mary DeVaughn, 70, of 629 Elliott st. ne., became the seventy-second traffic fatality this year. She was also the forty-ninth pedestrian to be killed on Washington streets in 1950.

James Redding

Mrs. DeVaughn was struck by a dump truck at 11:45 p. m., Saturday as she was walking diagonally across Maryland ave. at 14th st. ne.

The truck was driven by Roy Martin, 29, of 1911 Maryland ave. ne., police said.

Martin said he saw the victim stop in the street and, believing she would wait for him to pass, drove on. She walked directly into the path of the truck, he told police.

Not on Crosswalk, Police Told

Witnesses reported to police that Mrs. DeVaughn was not on a crosswalk and was looking in the other direction.

Mrs. DeVaughn was taken to Gallinger Hospital, where she died at 2:55 a. m. After performing an autopsy, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said she died from a crushed chest and cerebral hemorrhage. A technical charge of hold for the coroner was lodged against Martin.

Mrs. DeVaughn was a general houseworker and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Marie Payton and Mrs. Dorothy Brown, both of Washington.

Dr. MacDonald also yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death in the case of William Perryman, 43-year-old barber, who was killed when his auto crashed into an abutment of the bridge at 9th st. and New York ave. ne. Friday night.

Six persons were injured, one critically, in a four-car collision last night about 100 yards south of Roaches Run, on the Mount Vernon blvd.

Swings Wide for Head-on Crash

The accident occurred, park police said, when an auto heading north and driven by James R. Greene, apparently went out of control, swung wide and smashed head-on into an auto driven by Charles D. Elgin, 45, of 1720 N. 17th st., Arlington.

The impact knocked the Greene auto into a car he was trying to pass being driven by Ernest E. Travis of 2903 Longfellow blvd., Hyattsville. A fourth car, driven by Air Force Capt. James W. Babb, 29, of 610 Bellevue ave., Alexandria, rammed the Travis car from behind.

Mrs. Elizabeth Agnew, 52, clerk of the Arlington County Board, a passenger in Elgin's car, suffered multiple fractures and a head injury and was listed in critical condition at Emergency Hospital. Elgin was treated for a back injury.

Captain's Wife Hurt

Captain Babb's wife, Lorine, 26, was listed in serious condition at Emergency Hospital with head and knee injuries. Their children, Linda, 5, and James, 4, suffered slight head injuries, but 3-month-old Kathleen was uninjured.

Greene's 2-year-old son, Franklin, suffered a cut foot. Greene, who told police his brakes locked, was charged with reckless driving.

James Redding, 12, a Washington Post carrier boy who suffered compound fractures of both legs when he was run over by an auto while coasting on his sled near his home at 827 Rose la., Annandale, Va., Friday, was listed in good condition in Arlington Hospital yesterday.

Churchgoers Hear Christmas Message

Postlude

Christmas Music Sung At Cathedral

By Paul Hume

Christmas really did come, didn't it?

In the difficult days just passed, were there times when you wondered if it would, as it has for nearly two thousand years?

Were there moments when familiar Christmas music was the thing that reminded you that it would come, no matter how far away it seemed? That's the way it has been for many this year.

The same Christmas music that has long ushered in the year's happiest season brought it to us all again this year. Old and new carols, familiar words and music, anthems, and instruments have done their work for us in church, at home, and in the streets. And Christmas is here.

Throughout our churches, its songs are being sung. Yesterday afternoon, Washington Cathedral's famed choir and organists, Paul Callaway and Richard Dirksen, gave a sample of what was going on in churches, great and small, all over the city.

The congregation stood to sing, "O Come, Let Us Adore Him"; the choir sang, "Lo, How a Rose, E'er Blooming." They sang, too, a wonderful new setting by Ronald Arnatt, of an old Christmas poem, When Christ was born of Mary free.

Then, with Sylvia Meyer, harpist of the National Symphony Orchestra, they sang Benjamin Britten's beautiful Ceremony of Carols. This music is heard regularly in Washington. Britten wrote it in the hope that it would be sung by men and boys. Thus yesterday was the first time in the city that it heard in the form the composer desired.

Floating from the north gallery of the great church, it filled the air with a unique and tender sound. The music is rich, and the words full of the promise and fulfillment of Christmas.

It was a perfect afternoon. Its perfection came, as it always will, from the inspiration of the ancient story, sung and played—the story of the world's most wondrous Child.

The joyful message of the Saviour's birth—with its note of hope for eternal peace, good will and brotherhood—was repeated in many overflowing area churches yesterday.

Washington worshipers joined other Christians the jittery world over in saluting the Prince of Peace on the eve of his birthday.

From pulpit after pulpit came the word—after 1950 years—that peace was still lacking among men of good will.

Churches—almost without exception—held regular morning services with many adding evening vigils.

Throughout the day, musical programs, featuring carols and Christian anthems, were heard. There were also traditional Christmas pageants and plays.

Optimism was the keynote as pastors offered faith and prayer as curatives for modern tensions.

"The angelic echo of peace and the warmth of good will arises in us even though we know that in large areas of the world misguided men have undertaken to black out the star of Bethlehem," the Rev. Gerard A. McWilliams told the midnight mass at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, 4517 East-West hgwy.

"They've tried to nail shut the Stable and to hush the singing of angel spirits," the minister asserted. "We know in the light of faith that they will fail, even if we lose."

The Rev. Harry L. Bell, pastor of Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park rd. nw., saw "the star of Bethlehem" as "our only hope for peace and understanding."

"More significant and far-reaching than our tinkering with peace on the surface is the faith and hope which we have in the Christ whose birth the star announced."

At Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, 1862 Kalorama rd. nw., the Rev. Robert E. Sherrill declared "the love, light and labor found at that first Christmas is the same that will carry us through these perilous times."

One of a number of churches calling for a day of prayer for peace was the Congress Heights Episcopal Church, 5th st. and Alabama ave. The Rev. George L. Conner said, "We as individuals and nations are discovering that we are not sufficient unto ourselves."

Early Christmas Birds . . .

NEW D. C. RESIDENTS—Dr. William M. Mann of the Zoo brought these two red birds of paradise from a New Guinea fowl dealer. They are males, and beautiful. They arrived here yesterday. They do not have nice voices, but are raucous. This is because they are related to crows. That should make anybody raucous

D. C. Observes Christmas Eve With Tree Lightings, Carols

Groups of carolers lightened the air with song last night, as Christmas Eve crowds strolled to church services.

Neighbors gathered for prayers at dusk, and sang hymns to "the new-born Babe."

At the corner of 44th st. and Cathedral ave. nw., residents of Wesley Heights, Sumner and Spring Valley repeated the 28-year-old custom of greeting their neighbors and singing hymns.

Earlier in the day carol services for personnel and patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital were held in Howard and Hitchcock Halls at the hospital.

Thirty children at the Christ Child Farm in Rockville, Md., were treated to an old-fashioned Christmas party by members of the Rock Creek Council, Knights of Columbus. Every child had written a letter to his own Santa Claus (all members of the council), penning exactly what he wanted for Christmas. Yesterday their hearts' desires were gratified.

However, little Jimmy Gray, 3½, who had formerly been at the Christ Child Farm, wasn't there to collect from Santa. Jimmy, at Georgetown Hospital, is suffering from a rare blood disease. Doctors are hopeful he will live, but his Christmas celebration must be calm.

In his letter Jimmy, whose home is near Laurel, Md., asked for toy soldiers. Yesterday he received a whole row of them to play with on his hospital bed.

At dawn this morning the 85-piece Boys Club Band was off to cheer the shut-ins in hospitals, homes, charitable institutions at 11 stops in the Washington area.

The Fairfax Chorus of Vienna, Va., directed by Jeff Baker, is scheduled to sing Nolte's Dawn of Christmas on Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Vienna Presbyterian Church.

The National Capital Optimist Club is planning a Christmas party on Wednesday for children 10 years of age and under. The Moppet Shop cast will entertain.

The Bethesda Chamber of Commerce is planning a Christmas tree burning celebration on Thursday, January 4, at 7:30 p. m. on the grounds adjacent to the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

Curtis Gandy, Jr., Artist, Dies in Teaneck, N. J.

TEANECK, N. J., Dec. 24 (AP).—Curtis Gandy, jr., artist, died here today at his home of a heart attack. He was 86.

The Philadelphia-born artist, who painted portraits, landscapes and religious paintings, is said to have named the Santa Fe Railroad when he was commisisoned to paint scenes of the Pueblo Indians.

Christmas Welcomed In Churches

Christmas was welcomed in the Nation's Capital last night by thousands of churchgoers attending evening services and midnight masses.

In candle-lit churches, carols were sung and Biblical accounts of the birth of Christ were retold.

At homes, hospitals and institutions for the aged, carolers from many churches sang of "glory to the new-born king."

Midnight masses were celebrated in all Roman Catholic churches, and late services held in most Episcopal and Lutheran churches.

Many other churches observed midnight vigils.

For the first time in the history of Washington Cathedral, its traditional services were viewed by added thousands on a CBS-TV network.

Countless hundreds of candles, placed upon the altars, in the wrought-iron chandeliers, and around the massive clustered columns of the cathedral, illuminated its highest reach for viewers from Boston to Chicago.

Among the highlights of today's Christmas observance will be the 11 a. m. Washington Federation of Churches' twenty-eighth annual community service at National City Christian Church, Thomas cir. nw.

The Rev. Carl Heath Popf, minister of the First Congregational Church will preach on "I'm Dreaming of a Right Christmas." Special Noel music will be furnished by the choir of National City Christian Church under the direction of William Braithwaite.

All Roman Catholic churches will observe Monday masses. Many Episcopal churches have scheduled special services.

Among other churches scheduling Christmas Day services are: Chiesa del Redentore (Italian Baptist), 1200 Kirby st. nw., 10:55 a. m.; Concordia Lutheran Evangelican, 20th and G sts. nw., 10:30 a. m. (in German); Augustana Lutheran, New Hampshire ave. and V st. nw., 6 a. m. Swedish Julotta in candlelight; Trinity Lutheran, Mount Rainier, 10 a. m., and Faith Lutheran, Arlington, at 10 a. m. to open a door or window, if possible, and promised to get Dr. Gannon there immediately.

When the doctor arrived, within 10 minutes, he found the front door partially open but the screen door latched." Shortly after he got there, King gained consciousness and staggered to the door.

King was able to flip loose the screen door latch, but collapsed in Dr. Gannon's arms as the physician entered the door. Mrs. King was lying unconscious on the floor.

Dr. Gannon made an emergency call to police for oxygen. At that time, he said, King suffered a convulsion.

The physician immediately began to administer artificial respiration, and police and Fire Rescue Squad No. 1 arrived within a few minutes and gave the couple oxygen. They were able to revive Mrs. King, but her husband was pronounced dead at 12:26 p. m.

A call to the Washington Gas Light Co., brough Safety Engineer H. L. Leonard, who made tests of all the gas appliances but could find no leakage.

He described the home as an "extremely tightly sealed house."

They said this probably caused an oxygen deficiency. The pilot lights on the appliances were still burning, but the flames were bright yellow, police said. Detective Sergts. Theodore Hagee and A. D. Clark of the homicide squad said they developed headaches shortly after they went inside the house.

Dr. Gannon said he believed King suffered asphyxia. He added that King had an ailing heart, which may have been strained by lack of oxygen and his efforts to get help. An autopsy will be performed today to determine the exact cause of death.

Neighbors said the Kings had lived there about 30 years. They were a friendly but quiet couple who stayed home most of the time, according to neighbors.

King retired as an attorney with the Justice Department a little over a year ago, neighbors said. Several years before that he had worked for an insurance firm, they added.

Notified at the hospital of her husband's death, Mrs. King asked that their daughter, Mrs. E. Crawford Morton, jr., of Ticonderoga, N. Y., not be notified until after Christmas.

King also is survived by a brother, Norris King, of Towson, Md.

Mother, Daughter Both Give Birth On Same Day

Mrs. Isaac Ganim, 40, and her daughter, Mrs. Alex George, 19, both had to hang up extra stockings yesterday for Santa Claus to fill.

Each household had a new arrival on Christmas Eve.

Mrs. Ganim of 3388 Stuyvesant pl. nw., gave birth to an 8-pound boy at 3:16 a. m. in Suburban Hospital. Her daughter, Lillian, of 7401 Flower ave., Takoma Park, Md., became the mother of a 7½-pound girl at 5:39 p. m. in Washington Sanitarium.

Samuel A. Pearl Dead at 66; Veteran Printer for The Post

Mr. Pearl

Samuel A. Pearl, 66, a composing room veteran of 17 years with The Washington Post, died early yesterday at Garfield Hospital. He suffered a heart attack a month ago.

Starting as a printer many years ago, Mr. Pearl spent most of his years with newspapers except for a 12-year period when he operated his own printing business here. He lived at 1101 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Mr. Pearl was born in Garden City, Long Island, N. Y. After completing high school in New York City, he went to the old New York Herald for a job as reporter.

Instead, he became a printer's devil and had earned his union card within three years. He stayed with the Herald until 1906, when he came to Washington.

Mr. Pearl first joined the old Washington Times. Later he switched to the old Washington Herald. After several years he organized his own printing business, the Caslon Press, specializing in color work.

Twelve years later Mr. Pearl sold out the business, and for a brief period was manager of Ransdell, Inc., a commercial printing firm. He left there 17 years ago to join The Washington Post.

At first he worked as an advertising compositor. About 10 years ago he was put to work making up news pages, particularly those of the women's section.

His interest in newspapering and newspaper people was always great. Warned about eight years ago that his health was bad and he should retire, Mr. Pearl preferred to take his chances and insisted on continuing work.

Always generous to others, his favorite custom was to present as gifts many of the little trinkets he collected—some of them sent to him from abroad.

Each Christmas he sent refreshments to the reporters in the women's section, urging them to have a party on him.

Over a period of several years he had a large poster painted, wishing all a Merry Christmas, which hung in the newspaper's city room.

Last year he was honored for his 45-year membership in the International Typographical Union.

Mr. Pearl was particularly proud of his three grandchildren, Brian Skelton, 10, Patricia Den, 8, and Laurence Den, 3. He carried their pictures with him always and showed them to all he met.

He is also survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Pearl, and two daughters, Mrs. Alfred Den of 4714 Cortland rd., Chevy Chase, Md., and Mrs. Elmer Skelton of 6703 Gude ave., Takoma Park, Md.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 11 a. m. at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N st. nw. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

AVC Requests Impeachment Of McCarthy

The American Veterans Committee said yesterday that "large corporations jump to do the bidding" of Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.), and one result is a threat to American freedom of expression.

The Wisconsin senator has built himself up to his position "through use of the big lie technique and other reprehensible methods," AVC said in a statement.

It called on the new Congress to impeach him for a variety of reasons.

Boycott Plea Cited

AVC said the danger to freedom of expression was seen in action of the Adam Hat Stores, Inc., which announced Friday it will not renew its contract sponsoring Drew Pearson, radio commentator, when it lapses in February.

The firm said recent attacks by McCarthy on Pearson was not the reason; that it earlier had planned to change its advertising program.

In a Senate speech assailing Pearson the previous week, McCarthy said anybody buying an Adam hat "is unknowingly contributing at least something to the cause of international communism by keeping this Communist spokesman on the air."

The firm said in a statement that a boycott of its hats was not warranted, and that Pearson's opinions and policies did not reflect those of the firm. Pearson said his record of fighting communism is well known.

Makes Four Accusations

AVC said it was transmitting to the new Congress impeachment charges it made last June against McCarthy.

It accused the Senator of having:

1. "Subverted American justice and successfully held up execution of sentence on the Malmedy murderers." It said he had "used his position to tarnish the escutcheon of the Army."

McCarthy clashed bitterly in 1949 with a Senate committee which investigated conduct of the trials of Germans resulting from the massacre of a company of American prisoners. He said it had tried to whitewash Army officers accused of brutality in getting confessions.

2. Remained as circuit judge in Wisconsin contrary to State law and bar ethics while running for the Senate in 1946.

3. Accepted support of the Communist Party in that campaign.

4. "Subverted the operations of the State Department with a series of lies." It declared his disloyalty charges against department personnel were "unsubstantiated and unproved."

A Unique Hobby

Some Window Shopping Takes Place in Church

By Flora Gill

MRS. HELEN TURLEY of Arlington collects stained glass windows. That may sound like a cumbersome hobby, especially when the collector lives in a two-bedroom apartment, but Mrs. Turley has succeeded without a sliver of broken glass.

Mrs. Turley's windows are on color slides and in books she owns, some just in fond memory. Mrs. Turley likes to think of herself as nothing more than a layman who is fond of stained glass, but she has become so knowledgeable on the subject that she gives lectures about her avocation, complete with the color slides.

Mrs. Turley, a singer by profession, has concertized, pioneered in commercial radio and soloed in churches. Her interest in stained glass crystalized suddenly about six or seven years ago while she was walking down Baltimore's Charles st. with her husband.

MRS. HELEN TURLEY
Not a sliver of broken glass . . .

A LARGE, HANDSOME BOOK lay open in a shop window. The page exposed to view was a color plate of a stained glass window. The book, "Adventures in Light and Color" by Charles J. Connick, was "an introduction to the stained glass craft." Mrs. Turley dreamed about the book after she saw it on Charles st. Later, she bought it in Washington.

Color had always appealed to Mrs. Turley, the simplicity and beauty of glass color especially. A series of choir's eye views, in the many churches in which she sung, of lovely stained glass panels, the pleasure she found in them, plus the inspiration of the book on Charles st., left her vulnerable to the bite of the collecting bug.

Not long after Mrs. Turley bought the book, her children sent money to buy color slides for a projector she has. But she had another idea. She went into a shop that sells such slides and asked, "Why can't stained glass window slides be made?" Coincidently, the shop was aware that the National Cathedral would soon issue a series.

THE CATHEDRAL'S issue was the basis of a window color slide collection that now numbers around a hundred, and with which Mrs. Turley illustrates her lectures. Two young friends, interested in color photography—one an engineer, the other solo flutist with the San Antonio Symphony—have augmented the collection with slides made especially for Mrs. Turley.

It is the beauty of the glass itself rather than the stories the windows tell that most intrigues Mrs. Turley. "The stories in themselves are a study," says Mrs. Turley. But she finds interesting the number of lay figures found on church glass where biblical subjects are expected to predominate.

The Cathedral has a number of windows devoted to laymen. Among them is the Florence Nightingale window with six little panels illustrating the life of the Crimean heroine. In a similar dedication to healing, the Physicians' window combines two lay figures, Louis Pasteur and Sir Wilfred Grenfell with Christ the Great Healer. The Statesman window is appropriately historical, depicting Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, co-authors of the Declaration of Independence. Rock Creek Parish Church, one of Mrs. Turley's favorites for stained glass, illumines two other noted Americans, George Washington and Robert E. Lee. The Church of the Latterday Saints at 16th and Harvard, according to Mrs. Turley, instead of figures has State flowers.

A REVERSAL of this appearance of lay figures in churches is the use of stained glass in public buildings. This Mrs. Turley would like to consider a trend, and one she intends to emphasize by including stained glass in any home she builds. She notes the presence of stained glass windows in two such discrepant establishments as the reading room of the Folger Shakespearean Library, and Jelleff's department store.

It is difficult to pin Mrs. Turley down to a stained-glass favorite. She will nominate the rose window at the Cathedral with its more than 80 shades of blue and 9000 pieces of glass as the outstanding example. Then, she will reconsider and assert that the windows, especially the one above the balcony, in Church of the Pilgrims, 23d and P sts., nw. are unsurpassed.

Too, she rhapsodizes on the Phillips Memorial Chapel windows in Church of the Epiphany "where the texture of the glass is especially interesting," the rose window in St. Gabriel's Church at Grant Circle, the window over the altar at Walter Reed Chapel and those in the National Universalist Church at 16th and R sts. nw. The truth of the matter is that Mrs. Turley loves them all.

However, she has an especial fondness for the window in the Children's Chapel at the National Cathedral. Mrs. Turley took her grandson, David, "the apple of my eye," to the chapel, where all the furnishings are scaled down to child's size, when he was 8 or 9. (He is now 16.) Later he told her, "Granny, I'm in the Cathedral; I'm in the window in the little children's Chapel." David was referring to David—and Samuel, and the little boy who brought loaves and fishes to Jesus—who are, as the contemporary David said, "in the window."

"IT IS A LOVELY and tender experience to step through the delicately wrought iron gates into the children's chapel," says Mrs. Turley, and the words epitomize the warmth she feels toward all churches and their windows. Mrs. Turley spends a great deal of time in the Library of Congress doing research on stained glass window making, and speaks of Willet, Saint, DeRosen and other craftsmen in the art as concert-goers speak of cherished conductors.

But most of her research is done in churches—just looking—especially on gray days. "Gray days are the days to see stained glass windows," according to Mrs. Turley, who also believes they must be seen "quietly and without hurry."

She owns only one actual bit of stained glass—a small medallion made by John H. Bayless, curator at the National Cathedral, and she has it hanging—naturally—against the light of one of her living room windows in Colonial Village.

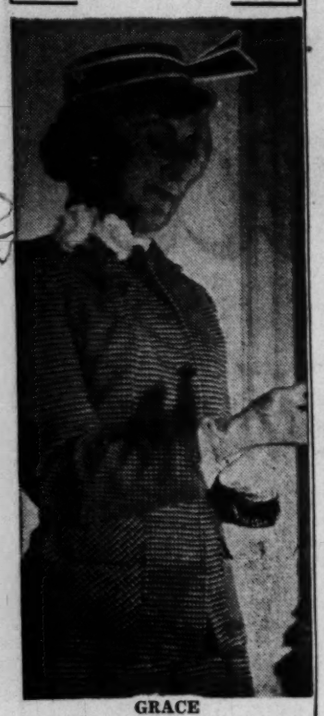
Experiment Grace

Old Ensemble Gilded by New Accessories



GRACE
. . . Her suit looks like new

By Ann Lawrence

(Twelfth day of Grace's beauty program):

WE GIVE YOU Grace—in the ensemble she wore when we started the experiment, but this time with her new face and coiffure; and to the suit, which has now been altered . . . we have added a few accessories, and taken away at least one.

Gone are the six little mink skins turned orange by sun, moth balls and lack of cleaning, and glazing at the furriers. It does not mean they are gone forever, because now Grace is going to take them to a furrier and find out if they can be dyed a lovely shade of brown. If they can, she will have the skins separated and wear only two at a time, caught closely around her neck over a cloth winter coat, or tucked into a suit collar.

Added are: a new hat . . . very white gloves . . . a high-necked white pique blouse . . . three white carnations.

THE NAVY HAT with its white rimmed perky bow sets down over Grace's forehead in the current forward manner, but with a snappy slant. The navy veil casts a pretty shadow on her face, hides some wrinkles.

The touch of white in the blouse which rides high on her neck, covers up the wrinkles in that area and adds a crisp, wide-awake look . . . very neat.

The white carnations are a bit of femininity, the white gloves an air of luxury (they're cotton and she will never wear them more than once without giving them a bath). Notice how we've turned up her jacket collar and pinned the flowers under the lapel. This is a note of jauntiness—in keeping with the new spirit of Grace's personality.

Ask Anne

Here Are Punch Recipes That Pack a Wallop, More Or Less, but Mostly Less

DEAR ANNE:

Can you give me a recipe for a hot fruit punch or Russian Tea or something of the sort to be served at a party for young people during the holidays? W. W., Frederick, Md.

HOT TEA PUNCH

½ cup water
1 2-inch stick cinnamon
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
¼ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup pineapple juice
3 cups boiling water
3 tablespoons tea

Combine sugar, water, cinnamon, lemon and orange rind in saucepan. Boil 5 minutes, then remove cinnamon stick. Add orange, lemon and pineapple juice. Keep hot. Pour boiling water over tea. Steep 3 minutes or more. Combine tea and fruit mixtures. Serve hot in tea or punch cups. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

YULETIME CRANBERRY PUNCH

¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
3 tablespoons tea
2½ cups boiling water
1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce
1½ cups water
¾ cup sugar
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice

Tie nutmeg, cinnamon, allspice and tea in cheesecloth bag. Put into freshly boiling water. Cover and steep for 5 minutes. Beat cranberry sauce with fork or egg beater and heat with 1½ cups water. Remove spice bag from steeping tea. Add sugar, hot cranberry liquid, orange and lemon juices. Serve hot. Serves 8 to 10.

DEAR ANNE:

I would like to make a simple champagne punch for a Christmas party and most of the recipes I've seen look rather complicated. I wonder if you have one that is easy to make and not too expensive. U. R., Alexandria.

CHAMPAGNE PUNCH
(Serves 8 to 10)

1 bottle champagne, chilled
1 bottle sauterne, chilled
1 bottle sparkling water, chilled
2 sliced oranges
4 lumps sugar

Pour over large chunk of ice in bowl or pitcher, first the sauterne, then champagne and sparkling water. Add sugar and orange, stir and serve.

DEAR ANNE:

One of your readers has a problem with her thermos. I solved the difficulty of the cream curdling by mixing the coffee, sugar, and cream, respectively, in a container, then pouring the well-stirred mixture in the thermos. I leave water in the thermos all night to alleviate the "souring" condition. R. Hodgson, Washington.

DEAR ANNE:

I have a beautiful machine-knitted, one-piece dress which cannot be worn today because of the rising hemlines. This dress must be altered at the hemline only. Who in this metropolitan area can tackle such a job for a reasonable fee?
Mrs. F. R. F., Arlington, Va.

A dress shop on 11th st. nw., in downtown Washington, shortens knit dresses. I'll have to leave it up to you as to how reasonable the fee, since this is so much a matter of opinion and the amount of work involved on your particular dresses. You can telephone the shop at Metropolitan 9334.

Anne answers questions through her column only; not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Decorations In Home Add To Holidays

DECORATIONS WILL FILL your home with friendliness and good cheer whether or not you plan to entertain during the coming holiday week.

Here are easy, low-cost ways to make your home look festive from Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

For a warm holiday welcome the moment you walk in the door, decorate the entrance with red construction paper filled with spruce branches studded with colored foil stars. For variation, place a cluster of large, medium, and small Christmas bulbs in the center.

Another entrance idea is a giant, green-and-white stocking hanging down the center of your door. Let it overflow with a rosette of greenery, a toy drum, candy cane and shiny colored balls. On the inside of the door fasten a jaunty toy soldier with a drum and a splash of evergreen.

FOR AN EYE-CATCHING coffee table surround a plump red candle with bright green holly, or on end tables place twin red spiral candles midst colorful holly arrangements. Living rooms will brighten up when festive Christmas cards are placed to frame the mirror.

For the holiday buffet, the front drop over of the white tablecloth can be swagged with a rope of greens. Outline tops and top-sides of double windows in the background with greens. Red balls polka-dotting white curtains will make the entire room a colorful setting.

In the breakfast nook paste a paper-doily snowflake to each windowpane. Place a foil star in the center. Red and green accessories go on the table.

Each Second Counts

Time is not an article . . . That we can tuck away . . . Time is not a bank account . . . Against a rainy day . . . It is something we must spend . . . As soon as it is here . . . Every minute of the day . . . Every month and year . . . Time is precious, time is short . . . Every second counts . . . Just as much as every pound . . . Is measured by the ounce . . . Let us use it wisely now . . . In everything we do . . . Let us be intelligent . . . Dependable and true . . . Let us spend each hour so . . . That no one will forget . . . Let us live it worthily . . . Without the least regret.

St. Nick Rules the Yule Tide Roost

By Elizabeth Maguire

ST. NICHOLAS was an honor guest in everyone's home last evening. It was Christmas Eve, the one night of the year when entertainment centers around family gatherings. As though curfew had rung, parties ended at the dinner hour, children went to bed like angels, and ubiquitous Santa prepared a round of calls.

Early in the evening, during the cocktail hours, Miss Claire Snow was hostess at a 6 to 8 p. m. gathering honoring her debutante cousin, Miss Nancy Mann. The party was given at Miss Snow's apartment. Nancy, who is home from Smith College for the holidays, will bow at a tea dance Saturday at the Sulgrave Club.

FROM 6 TO midnight Mr. and Mrs. Persifor Spilsbury were at home in their apartment at the Shoreham Hotel. Eggnogs and a buffet supper were offered.

"To Forgive, Divine"

Mrs. Rosenberg Stayed Polite

By Bert Andrews

MRS. ANNA M. ROSENBERG had reason enough to feel a sense of outrage, and to give voice to it in the feminine equivalent of the language President Truman uses when he gets mad about something. Instead, she chose to say her piece in terms that would be suitable for a thank-you note. And thereby hangs the tale of one of the best-conducted investigations seen in Washington in a long time.

The story had these chronological beginnings: President Truman appointed Mrs. Rosenberg to be Assistant Defense Secretary in charge of manpower problems. This was on November 11, while the Congress was away. On November 29, soon after the Congress returned, the Senate Armed Services Committee voted to recommend that her nomination be confirmed by the Senate. And then—the whispers began.

THE WHISPERS WERE that Mrs. Rosenberg had once been a Communist or that at the very least she had attended a meeting or meetings of the John Reed Club back in 1936; a club of leftists.

There were even a few witnesses who were willing to whisper to the Armed Services Committee.

They did, and as a result the Senate held up confirmation and the committee began an investigation.

To anyone who knew Mrs. Rosenberg and her record of achievement, the charges were a lot of nonsense.

Nevertheless, an inquiry was dictated. The committee members and its staff really investigated. The story of what they did has been told in detail.

IT HAS ALSO been told how Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) announced on Thursday, with some disgust because of the time that had been wasted, that the committee had voted 13 to 0 that all the charges against Mrs. Rosenberg were baseless, and had decided 13 to 0 to recommend that the Senate approve her. It has been revealed that the committee members think some of the witnesses should be indicted for perjury if the charges can be made to stick legally.

Some of the things that haven't been related fully concern Mrs. Rosenberg's magnanimity in the face of charges that could have made her bitter; the comments that notable Americans had to make about her, and the statements that a couple of the Washington newspapers made in editorials.

Here's what Mrs. Rosenberg had to say:

"I AM DEEPLY GRATEFUL to the members of the Armed Services Committee for the conscientious and fair way in which they conducted the hearings on my nomination. They were determined to get all the facts and get them straight. They worked day and night to see that justice was done. This kind of devotion to public duty renews one's faith in democracy.

"I also wish to thank the press and radio for their fair reporting. And I will never be able to thank in person the numberless people who expressed their faith and confidence in me through letters and telegrams."

Here are some of the men and women for whom Mrs. Rosenberg's thank-you note was meant:

BERNARD M. BARUCH, to Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) "Am pleased to telegraph what I said to you personally that I think Anna Rosenberg thoroughly capable and best possible choice."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, to Senator Russell —"I have been impressed by her thinking, her direct and forthright attitude, and her outspoken interest in Americanism and its perpetuation. It has never crossed my mind to question her sincerity, integrity and her devotion to her country."

Gov. James F. Byrnes (D., S. C.), who worked closely with Mrs. Rosenberg when he was Director of Economic Stabilization and Director of War Mobilization in World War II, in a letter to the committee.—"During that service I had opportunity to know her views. I have absolute confidence in her undivided loyalty to the United States."

MRS. OVETA CULP HOBBY, war-time director of the Wacs.—"I regard her as an outstanding American patriot and in my opinion she will make a great contribution to the Nation as Assistant Secretary of Defense."

Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War, in a telegram to Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.)—"I have the highest regard for Anna Rosenberg as a thoroughly patriotic American."

A joint exhibition of the work of two prominent Washington artists, Lucile Evans and Barbara Ferrell, will be held at the Corcoran Gallery of Art starting next Friday.

The show will continue until January 19, Hermann Warner Williams, jr., director of the gallery said.

Both artists have exhibited in many local shows and were included in the Third Annual Area Exhibition at the Corcoran in December, 1948.

Any artist living within a 50-mile radius of Washington may submit as many as eight works, but not more than four in a class.

Entries should be delivered at the gallery's service entrance between 9:15 a. m. and 4 p. m. Thursday and Friday, accompanied by an entry fee of 50 cents per object entered.

Details my be obtained by writing the gallery, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Judges will be Mrs. Adelyn D. Breeskin, director of the Baltimore Museum of Art, and David K. Smith, noted modern sculptor. Smith will lecture on "For Whom Do You Make Sculpture?" at 8:30 p. m. January 9 at the gallery.

Universities' Facilities to Be Listed for U. S.

Information on facilities in the Nation's colleges and universities that may be needed for the defense effort is being assembled by the Office of Education.

The office was recently designated as the focal point within the Federal Government for all planning in the educational area during the emergency. Colleges and universities were told by the office what type of information on their facilities will be requested at a later date.

The assembly job now under way will make all the information available to the Departments of Defense, State, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor. It also will be used by the National Security Resources Board, the Library of Congress, Public Health Service, Central Intelligence Agency, Atomic Energy Commission and other Federal agencies with a major share in defense activities.

Many educational groups, including the American Council on Education and the Association of American Colleges, participated in planning the information inventory.

United States Commissioner of Education Earl J. McGrath said yesterday that outlines, to be used as a guide by institutions reporting on their facilities, are being mailed to each institution.

U. S. and Spain To Exchange Envoys 'Soon'

By the United Press

The United States and Spain will announce "very soon" their official decision to exchange ambassadors for the first time in five years, Administration officials said yesterday.

They said only technical diplomatic courtesies now stand in the way of an official announcement that Washington and Madrid are ending their diplomatic impasse.

President Truman will nominate as United States Ambassador to Madrid Stanton Griffis, a 63-year-old Bostonian, who recently resigned his post as Ambassador to Argentina.

Spain's envoy to the United States will be her former Foreign Minister, Jose Felix Lequerica. He has been in the United States frequently with headquarters at the Spanish Embassy.

Completed action on the Griffis-Lequerica exchange will amount to a fairly rapid change of mind by Mr. Truman. Just seven weeks ago the President said it would be a long, long time before he would agree to name an Ambassador to Madrid.

The State Department was startled by the President's off-the-cuff remark. It had hoped this country could abandon the policy of having top-flight diplomatic representatives in Soviet and satellite countries but not having the fullest diplomatic relations with anti-Communist Spain.

The State Department was ready for quick action on November 4 when the United Nations ended its ban on ambassadorial and ministerial representatives in Spain.

Authorities said the President had been convinced in the meantime that it would be in "the best interest of the United States" to nominate an Ambassador for the Spanish post. Griffis' name then was suggested to the Spanish government which approved.

United States domestic relations in Spain have been conducted by a charge d'affaires since December 31, 1945, when Norman Armour retired as Ambassador. Paul T. Culbertson, who has just returned to this country from Madrid, has been the top American official there with the rank of counselor.

Peru Rejects Post Proposal For Trying Political Refugee

By The Associated Press

The Peruvian Embassy yesterday rejected an editorial suggestion by The Washington Post that an American mediator arrange for the safe conduct of Victor Raul Haya de la Torre from Peru.

The newspaper on Thursday proposed a mediator of the standing of former Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles. It said such an arrangement would recognize Peru's interests and take into account public opinion in the hemisphere.

Haya de la Torre is a Peruvian political leader who has been in refuge in the Colombian Embassy at Lima for nearly two years. Colombia and Peru recently took their dispute over his asylum to the World Court. Two weeks ago Colombia asked the World Court to determine whether she should turn him over to Peru for prosecution.

The Embassy, in a press statement, said it "feels impelled" to comment about the editorial and pointed out that Peruvian courts have no authority to try people in absentia.

Guilt No Issue

"The International Court of Justice," it said, "has definitely established that Colombia is not authorized to determine the accusation and that the asylum given by its Embassy in Lima to Haya de la Torre is not in agreement with the Havana Convention of 1928—the only judicial agreement on asylum in force between the two countries—and in accordance with which Peru is not obligated to concede the safe conduct requested by Colombia.

"The verdict does not determine that Haya de la Torre is a political refugee. The Court only 'considers that the Government of Peru has not proved that the acts of which the refugee was accused before January 3 and 4, 1949 (on rebellion) constitute common crime.'

"But the definite decision is dependent on the courts of justice of Peru, and, as there do not exist in Peru suits in absentia, they have not been able to proceed with the present accusation."

Life Not in Danger

"The United States," it continued, "which does not recognize diplomatic asylum in the way it is practiced by Latin American countries, has not subscribed to any of the conventions on asylum.

"This is very eloquent in showing that Peru is not the only country which does not ratify a means of establishing a right to determine (a political refugee) contrary to the concept of sovereignty and jurisdiction maintained by Peru . . .

"The government of Peru, as a consequence of the decision of the court, has requested that the government of Colombia terminate the illegal asylum given by the Embassy of Colombia in Lima to Haya de la Torre.

"The government of Colombia has believed it necessary to resort to the court again before carrying out the terms of the sentence . . .

"To magnify the problem by talking about the peace of America or stating that the life of the refugee is in the slightest danger is deliberately to destroy the issue."

Humphrey Calls For Crackdown On Speculators

By The Associated Press

Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) declared yesterday that "scandalous" commodity speculation is adding billions of dollars to the cost of the defense program.

The Minnesota lawmaker called on the new Congress which convenes next week to give President Truman "full authority to crack down on this situation."

What is needed, Humphrey told a reporter, is government control of speculation on the commodity exchanges. The present Congress rejected Mr. Truman's request for such authority.

Humphrey also demanded that the Administration invoke general wage-price control immediately. He said Federal stabilization officials are moving "far too slowly" toward harnessing the cost of living.

Father of four children, Humphrey said the public is getting fed up with skyrocketing prices. "Anyone who shops for anything from diapers to shoes knows that the situation is outrageous and, like me, they are getting damned sick and tired of it," Humphrey exploded. "I say it's time to do something about it—quick."

Augustinians Will Observe Centenary

The Augustinian Fathers of the Assumption will mark the centennial of their founding with ceremonies next weekend.

The celebration will begin Saturday with an informal reception from 3 to 6 p. m. at the order's house on Riggs rd. near Metzerott rd., Hyattsville.

On Sunday, a solemn mass of thanksgiving will be offered in the St. Vincent de Paul Chapel at Catholic University.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, D.D., Apostolic Delegate to the United States, will preside. Celebrant will be the Very Rev. Wilfrid Dufault, A.A., American Provincial of the Assumptionists. He will be assisted by members of the community as deacon and subdeacon.

The sermon will be delivered by the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P. Music will be furnished by the Christian Brothers choir.

The Assumptionist Fathers, as they are often called, were founded in 1850 at Nimes, France, by the Rev. Emmanuel d'Alzon. Early in the twentieth century, a foundation was established at Worcester, Mass.

The Worcester foundation has grown into the Assumption College of today—said to be the only completely bi-lingual college in America. Both English and French are spoken on routine matters at all times.

The Hyattsville house was opened last August.

An exhibit will be staged by the fathers in the main foyer of the Mullen Library of Catholic University from January 5 to 19 in connection with the centennial. This exhibit has traveled throughout the United States and Canada this year to acquaint the public with the work of the congregation.

Shower Cue

Gift to Bride Should Add to Her Trousseau

By Betty Clarke

IF YOU are planning a shower gift for the winter bride-to-be, give her something for her trousseau.

Every prospective bride looks forward to having little glamorous accessories to take away on her honeymoon.

MOST GIRLS who are lucky enough to be showered by their friends get the usual routine of linen, lingerie or kitchen showers.

Such things as perfume, compacts, bath powder, sachet and other toiletry gifts usually are left to the bride to purchase for herself. These little personal gifts which add to the charm of a lovely bride usually are last minute items to be met by an already strained check book.

SAY IT with sachets which can be tucked into the lingerie, or looped over the hangers to scent clothing, or sachet powder which can be enclosed in little fabric hearts to pin at the hem or neckline of a gown.

Soap is another ideal gift for the bride. A lovely scented soap, perhaps in a pastel shade with a floral decoration, always is useful. There are kits of hand soap and bath soap to enhance the best hope chest a bride-to-be can produce.

COLOGNE, perfume and compacts also will be welcomed. A light floral cologne or a solid stick that is particularly packable is a good thought. A perfume in a "Beloved" scent would be smart and appropriate. Compacts are so beautiful and unique this year, that it will be difficult to make a choice. Some of the bejeweled compacts with matching lipsticks look for all the world like they are studded with real gems.

Body of Man Who Vanished in 1949 Found Under Ice

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 24 (NYHT). — The body of W. Leonard Alexander, 48-year-old investment counsel, of Wayne, Pa., who disappeared from his Princeton University reunion last June 11, 1949, was recovered yesterday from his automobile which was found in 16-feet of water at the western end of Lake Carnegie.

The car, a 1939 Lincoln Zephyr, registered in his name, was sighted at 4 p. m. yesterday through 4 inches of ice by two Princeton girls who were ice skating. The girls, Barbara Coan, 15, and Catherine Guinn, 16, reported their discovery to Princeton Township police.

Identification was made by means of the rust-covered car; a wrist watch bearing the name of a Philadelphia jeweler, and a key ring charm.

A suitcase with the initials "W. L. A." was found in the car trunk, along with a .22-caliber pistol, holster and cartridges. Police said there was no evidence of foul play, and Coroner Carmer Prunetti of Mercer County said death was from drowning.

Richardson's 'Lame Duck' Luck Persists

NYHT News Service

Seth W. Richardson's ill luck with "lame duck" Congresses appears today to be overtaking him again, thus raising new doubts as to the future leadership of the Subversive Activities Control Board.

On October 23 President Truman appointed Richardson chairman of the new Subversive Activities Control Board.

When the "lame duck" session was resumed on November 27, the nomination was submitted to the Senate for confirmation.

The Senate Judiciary Committee appointed a three-man subcommittee to consider the appointment. It is composed of Senators Pat McCarran, (D., Nev.) committee chairman, James O. Eastland (D., Miss.), and Homer E. Ferguson, (R., Mich.). The committee has held no hearings and has taken no other action. There is, therefore, no likelihood that Richardson will be confirmed at this session.

In 1933, former President Hoover sent to another "lame duck" Congress the nomination of Richardson to be a judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals. The Senate fically adjourned without acting on it, and Richardson never became a judge.

When the Eighty-second Congress convenes on January 3 President Truman either will have to resubmit Richardson's name or else nominate someone else.

Hoover's Advice Is Assailed by Ex-State Official

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP).—Clark M. Eichelberger, former State Department consultant, said today that former President Hoover's recent counsel "assumes the inevitability of a third world war and would bring it about."

Eichelberger, director of the American Association for the United Nations, did not refer to Hoover by name but his reference to "one of America's elder statesman" was clear. He spoke on his weekly radio program carried by NBC.

He specifically attacked the former President's proposal to set up defense frontiers in Britain and in Japan, Formosa and the Philippines.

"We would notify . . . western Europe that, after urging them to recovery and resistance through the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic Pact, that we have written them off . . ." Eichelberger said.

He added that the proposed Far East defense line tells India "and the other colonial people of the world, who have just become free, that we have no interest in them; that we abandon them to communism."

Ohio Police Slay Man After Siege Of 50 Gas Bombs

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Dec. 24 (AP). — A steelworker wounded a policeman, withstood a siege of about 50 tear-gas bombs, then leaped from the window of a burning house and was shot to death here early today.

Albert DiCristofaro, 30, was killed by police bullets as he fired at officers with a target pistol. A riot squad of 14 policemen had besieged him for two hours, during which, the officers estimated, DiCristofaro fired nearly 100 shots at them.

Thomas DiCristofaro said his son had quarreled with a sister, Yolando, when she came home from a neighbor's about 1 a. m. When Albert began shooting, the father said, his parents and sister fled into a bedroom and locked him out.

The father said he crawled out of a window and phoned police when Albert proceeded to shoot up the kitchen. A patrolman who responded to the call was slightly wounded.

Grateful Boss Gives 1000 Trip, Party and Raises

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 24 (AP).—A flying carpet loaded with more than 1000 holiday-bent pottery workers took off for home today after a fabulous Christmas party on the boss.

The flying carpet was a 14-car special railroad train which pottery owner L. P. (Lew) Reese chartered to transport his employes from Scio, Ohio, to Pittsburgh for a whoop-dee-do Yule celebration.

Reese, 58, head of the Scio-Ohio Pottery Company rented the entire seventeenth floor of the William Penn Hotel for the festivities.

He picked up the tab which came to $30,000.

Right after a sumptuous dinner, Reese broke the good news—a 15-cent hourly wage increase for everyone. In addition, Reese passed out $70,000 in vacation pay.

Reese said the workers already had given him a Christmas present in having boosted production ten percent after a disastrous 1947 fire which put him out of business.

Cathedral Restored

British Meat Supply Reduced to 4 Weeks

LONDON, Dec. 24 (U.P.).—Britain, with only four weeks' fresh meat supply on hand, is facing the most serious meat shortage since the war began, the newspaper Empire News reported today.

The Lord Kensley-owned newspaper said that since Argentina halted meat shipments to Britain, the government has been taking 3000 tons of meat out of its warehouses each week to add to the home-killed supply. At the present rate of use, canned meat supplies will last only 12 weeks, the article said.

Drought-Hit Yugoslavia Now Plagued by Rains

BELGRADE, Dec. 24 (AP).—Yugoslavia, in sore plight because of last summer's record drought, is now getting so much rain that crops sown for next summer are being severely damaged, especially in coastal Dalmatia.

Heavy rains have been falling for nearly a month in Dalmatia. Great sections of farmland are under water and plowing is being delayed. The districts of Metkovic and Sibenik have been especially hit by floods.

Army to Open Night School For Reservists

A special night school for Army Reserve officers in the Washington area will open next month in Louisiana Hall at Arlington Farms.

The school, 1 of 62 being set up throughout the country by the Army, is designed to give members of the Organized Reserve Corps the same training they would get at one of the large Army service schools.

Classes will be held every two weeks, each course lasting about three years, although officers may pursue the training according to their available time. There will be some 17 "sub-schools" within the school, with students enrolling in the special school for their individual branch.

A staff of 45 reserve officers and 20 enlisted personnel will head the instruction teams. Lieut. Col. H. W. Earle, 105 N. Wayne st., Arlington, is the Regular Army unit instructor for the school. The commandant will be Col. John N. Andrews, a reservist who is the personal representative of Gen. Carl Gray, director of the Veterans Administration.

Opening exercises, with a brief concert by the United States Army Band, will be held at 2 p. m. January 6 in the auditorium at Arlington Farms.

In addition to the 24 classroom periods each year, there will be available 15 days' active duty training in the field during the summer, for each student, if sufficient funds are available.

Second Recording Of Bible Finished

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP).—A second complete recording of the King James version of the Bible has been completed, the American Foundation for the Blind said today.

Readings by actor Alexander Scourby took four years. The rerecording was needed because the original wore out from frequent reproduction. The first recording of the Bible, begun in 1934, was made piecemeal and took 10 years to complete.

Distribution will be by the American Bible Society and the Library of Congress, which has found the Bible the most popular of the 1500 "talking books" titles it gives free to blind persons, the foundation said.

Walter Winchell . . . In New York

Of Time and Tolerance

Victor Hugo once said that nothing was more irresistible than an idea whose time had come . . . He might also have said that nothing makes an idea grow faster than trying to abolish it by brute force. The Roman emperors, unleashing lions on thousands of helpless Christians, merely dramatized the terrific spiritual strength of the great new religion . . . The British kings demanding that their subjects practice only one religion—caused the Puritans and the Pilgrims to found America . . . By the same token, the blood-lusty Nazis, running amuck in Europe's ghettos, were helping to lay the foundations for the Republic of Israel with every crack of their whips.

Every common gambler knows what statesmen apparently never learn; that the odds never change in roulette or history—and that the laws of chance are as inevitable as the laws of gravity . . . Whenever a government starts out to build a tomb for an idea it is unknowingly building its foundation—and some forgotten chapters of American history prove it.

The Massachusetts Bay colony in 1636 was troubled by a difficult young minister who used his pulpit to proclaim that the government had no jurisdiction over his conscience. The authorities, at first, showed great patience. Elders pointed out to him that he was wrong and gave him time to retire and meditate. The result of his meditation was that more than ever he was convinced he was right. So they put him on trial, convicted him and sentenced him to banishment. But the outraged community was not satisfied. A frenzied persecution started—which forced Roger Williams to become a fugitive in the wilderness. The net effect of the persecution was strictly in accord with the historical odds. Because when Williams shook off his pursuers he knelt and thanked Providence—which is still the name of the city where he founded the State of Rhode Island.

Around 1631 Lord Baltimore was not popular in England. He was a Catholic and Catholics were in high disfavor . . . In addition to steadfastly standing by his faith, he, too, proclaimed that any man had a right to worship God as his conscience dictated. He secured a patent from the King for a new settlement, but the Virginia colony demanded that he accept the supremacy of their church. He refused to do so, and made the long voyage back to England to clear his rights. He died just as he did so, but he charged his son to carry on. His son did so by founding a haven not only for persecuted Catholics but for any man to worship as he saw fit. They founded the now free State of Maryland—and the Lords Baltimore gave its largest city their name.

The first new deal in America for the forgotten man wasn't FDR's. It was Maj. Gen. James Edward Oglethorpe's . . . In 1732 he gathered together a fine group of men who were imprisoned for debt and not for crime. He proclaimed a new settlement of absolute religious freedom—which attracted German Lutherans, Italian Catholics, Scotch Highlanders, Swiss, Portuguese and Jews . . . That enterprise still flourishes as the great State of Georgia.

About 1844 Joseph Smith believed an angel visited him with a new interpretation of the Bible. Thousands of people flocked to his banner. But the people of New York and Pennsylvania didn't want any part of the new religion and the sect was forced into Ohio . . . Ohio, too, pushed them on and they finally took refuge at Nauvoo, Ill. They were given the poorest land but their terrific industry made it bloom . . . The neighboring towns hated them and feeling mounted . . . Political pressure was brought to bear and Joseph Smith was ordered to trial. With tremendous dignity, he surrendered to the authorities . . . It is written on one of the blackest pages of our history that as he awaited trial a mob of 200 men with blackened faces lynched him.

But Joseph Smith's idea survived his Nauvoo lynching as certainly as the spirit of Joan of Arc lived through the flames in the market place of Rouen . . . The midnight of his lynching, the persecuted colony of desperate Mormons put their women and children in wagons and, their rifles in their elbows, crossed the Mississippi on its frozen ice—and marched on to found the magnificent State of Utah.

A group of people conceived the novel idea that the Testament meant exactly what it said: That all men are brothers and it is wrong for them to kill each other. After a very bitter persecution in England they came to America. Their strange belief frightened the other colonies and it was made a criminal offense for them to enter some of them. Connecticut, for example, made it a punishable offense to even receive one, except in case of shipwreck. But the newcomers, Quakers, named their city after brotherly love, and translated, that is what Philadelphia means. That strange new doctrine worked so well that even the Indians understood it. Pennsylvania made and kept the only effective treaty with the Indians.

Persecutions are far from over. If anything, the Twentieth Century is much more cruel because the unjust punishment is so much more refined. For example, ever since Adam and Eve were ushered out of the Garden of Eden man has had to trade his sweat for his bread. Hence, if a man, because of his race and creed is denied a job, it means he and his children have less chance to eat. If his children are denied an equal chance to go to school, it means they are being denied a chance to grow. That Lincoln was born in a log cabin is a matter of national pride. Yet to millions of American Negroes it has been the reason their children were not allowed to go to school.

Right now, the spy rysteria couldn't be more effective than if it were planned by Moscow. This is why a spy organization is so tight that a major commands only six men. Espionage depends on quality, not quantity. To a spy organization a Klaus Fuchs is worth 20 divisions and a prime minister's butler is worth 500 colonels. A spy is a professional operating in the dark, and it takes a professional to catch him. The early House Un-American Activities Committee was so busy with its hippodroming that it forgot to plug loopholes in our law. That, incidentally, was the only purpose, constitutionally, on which it could legally act and that is the only thing it did not do.

These are sober times and the government needs every able man it can get, but a lot of them refuse to face the ordeal of secret accusations.

Co-Pilot Dies of Injuries In Canada Mountain Crash

PENTICTON, B. C., Dec. 24 (AP)—The copilot of a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane which crash-landed on a British Columbia mountain Friday night joined the pilot in death today while the passengers they saved were still straggling down the mountainside.

The copilot, Leo Doucette, of Vancouver, B. C., succumbed to injuries during the night. Capt. Quinton Moore, the pilot, died in the miraculous but unexplained landing on the 4000-foot level of brushy, snow-covered Mount Okanagan.

Fifteen passengers and the stewardess on the plane escaped injury. Today, they joined in praise of the skillful work which brought their big DC-3 down without injury to them.

Only six of the passengers reached here last night. The bodies of Doucette and Moore are still at the crash scene, attended by ground and air base rescue parties.

Details of the accident were still meager. A quick-thinking passenger apparently prevented fire from breaking out soon after the craft skidded to a stop.

Site of the crash is 280 miles inland from Vancouver, on the coast, and about 25 miles north of the United States-Canadian border.

Rescue officials hoped to be able to get a helicopter there today to bring out the bodies.

U. S. Tanker Aground

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP).—A ship identified by the Coast Guard as the 7177-ton American tanker William H. Carruth ran aground tonight on the Isle of Wight, off the southern coast of England.

Relief Applications Increase in Virginia

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 24 (AP).—November's winter weather brought the usual increase in applications for general relief, the State Department of Welfare and institutions reported today.

It's a trend, the department said in a monthly bulletin, that probably will continue until spring opens up more outdoor jobs and cuts out the need for fuel. There were 729 applications in this category of welfare last month compared to 636 in October.

Bromfield's Daughter Wed

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Dec. 24 (AP).—Mary Hope Bromfield, daughter of author-farmer Louis Bromfield, was married to Robert T. Stevens, jr., at Plainfield, N. J., yesterday at Bromfield's Halabar Farm near here. Stevens, son of the chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, is a post-graduate student at Rutgers University.

The Doll's House

Stu Reaches Height Of Inoffensiveness

By John Crosby

BROADCASTING has always striven to be, above all things, innocuous, and I think it has finally reached the ultimate in sheer inoffensiveness in the Stu Erwin show, subtitled, "The Trouble With Father" (ABC-TV-WMAL, 7:30 p. m. Saturdays).

Crosby

This is domestic comedy featuring Erwin, formerly of the films; June Collyer, who has been Erwin's wife for 19 years, and replicas of their two daughters—Jackie and Joyce. It is supposed to depict the ordinary tribulations of an ordinary family and it has truly achieved an apex of ordinariness which can only be described as extraordinary.

The Erwins had quite an experience getting the job. They were summoned to Minneapolis to be inspected by the General Mills crowd, the sponsor, who wanted to be sure their personalities were typically American, that their opinions were sufficiently mild, conservative and 100 percent as not to ruffle a single sensibility in this broad land and that no whisper of scandal had ever touched them in their 19 years of married life. It was a stiffish test and the fact that the Erwins breezed through it unscathed qualifies them, I think, for the title of Mommie and Daddy of 1950.

HOWEVER, the very spotlessness of the Erwins' matrimonial record, admirable as it is as an example to the community, rather mitigates against it as material for comedy. The Erwin scripts, like the Erwin life, are wholesome as pablum and about as tasteless. An old flame of June's blows in and Stu gets jealous. Just a little jealous, since extreme jealousy would not be seemly in such a pillar of the community. He misunderstands. The children misunderstand. This misunderstanding makes a shambles of dinner, through a tortuous complication of plot which I have no intention of going into, and then it is cleared up, as we knew all along it would be.

June, after all, wouldn't so much as lower an eyelash at someone who wasn't her husband. The unpredictability of women has been limned by poets and pretty well confirmed, even by the peasants for centuries. But you can't be unpredictable and work for General Mills. Miss Collyer, incidentally, is a very beautiful woman. However, her natural beauty, it strikes me, has been considerably dimmed by the make-up men and she is generally kept swathed in aprons as if someone were afraid that Miss Collyer, unalloyed, might arouse base appetites in the rest of us.

RECENTLY the Erwins won an English butler from a give-away program. For breakfast the next morning, the butler served kippers and croquettes. Erwin, you'll be happy to learn, was properly outraged by the introduction of these foreign dishes into a decent American household, dedicated as it is, to ham and eggs and General Mills breakfast food. The butler was promptly raffled off at a women's club bazaar.

After the Erwins, it comes as a shock to turn to "Studio One's" (CBS-WTOP-TV, 7:30) fine production (in two parts, the last one tonight) of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women." Even in the decorous days of the mid-nineteenth century, Jo and Meg and Beth and Amy were a good deal more headstrong and were permitted a good many more human qualities than the Erwins.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Christmas, 1950

The magic of that first bright star
Which shone on Infant Jesus' bed
And brought the Wise Men from afar
To lay sweet gifts at Jesus' head,
Still lights the world, the hearts of men,
Renews lost faith of all the earth,
Restores and heals, while once again
It shines on Infant Jesus' birth.

SUGGESTION BOX

Mrs. E. W. Wood of Newport, R. I., prefaces her letter with the explanation that after living in Washington and being a Washington Post subscriber, the Woods have never been able to adjust themselves to any other paper. So they're still District Liners, via our mail editions.

Her suggestion has to do with the flood of toys and gifts our youngsters get at Christmas time, and then the 12 long months before it's Christmas again.

Mightn't it be a good idea, she asks, to hold back some of the gifts for a while? The kids will enjoy the holiday just as much and then, a few months later, they'll have Christmas all over again when more packages are brought out of their hiding places and unwrapped.

In her own home, she adds, the plan eliminates the practice of enthusing too much over one or two major presents while the minor gifts are all but ignored. The spirit and enjoyment of the season are prolonged, and the children seem to like the arrangement as much as their parents.

Incidentally, it's an idea that superintendents of orphanages and other institutions might also consider. Kids are kids, in any environment.

MAKE HOLIDAY

Make holiday, O world beyond!
From battlefields afar
Light home the lonely and the lost
With every shining star.

And let our love be known to them
When songs of peace are sung
By holy ones, to welcome them,
So many—and so young.

Jesus Vision Invoked for Peace

By Drew Pearson

About two years ago I published "A GI's Plea for Peace," written by John Crown, a paralyzed war veteran. The letter attracted so much attention that August Dietz of Richmond, Va., generously printed several thousand copies and this letter became a source of inspiration to many Americans.

Pearson

Last spring, John Crown's tortured body gave up the battle for life. I should like to republish his letter on this Christmas Day, when we are trying to dedicate ourselves to the things Christ taught us. It follows:

"My name is John Crown. I am a paraplegic at Halloran General Hospital (near New York). My physical wounds are very small in comparison with my spiritual wounds. I have come back from death to a world that I no longer care for. I, who have been engaged in the great struggle to save the world from tyranny, and having seen my comrades die for this cause, can now find no peace in the world or in my country.

"Having lived close to death for two years, the reasons why there is no peace seem infinitesimally flimsy. Russia wants the Dardanelles, Yugoslavia wants Trieste, the Moslems want India, labor wants more wages, capital wants more profit, Smith wants to pass the car in front of him. Junior wants more spending money. To these I say, is it necessary to kill and cripple human beings for these petty gains? Anyone who thinks a human body is so cheap that it can be traded for a tract of land, a piece of silver, or a few minutes of time should be forced to listen to the moans of the dying, night and day for the rest of his life.

Progress Noted

"All the troubles of the world originate in the common man. The selfish and greedy ways of nations are just the ways of each individual man multiplied a hundredfold. When the morals of the common man drop, so do the morals of the nations of the world. As long as our individual morals remain at a low ebb, so will be the world. Until each of us stops 'hogging the road' with his car, stops fighting over the seat on the bus, stop arguing over who is going to cut the grass, there will be no peace in the world.

"If man wishes peace again, he must remember the great commandment, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself for the love of God.'"

John Crown hit the nail on the head all right in diagnosing the ills of the world. But it seems to me that his pain-racked body caused him to overlook some of the great accomplishments we have made in our 2000 years struggle upward toward the great goal Christ set for us—the Sermon on the Mount.

Today is a discouraging Christmas for most of us, a Christmas during which our Nation may be facing its greatest peril in history, a time when our leaders sometimes have faltered, when we have made mistakes.

But out of this discouragement, I think one thing should be remembered.

Despite the intolerance which is still rampant in the land, and despite our faults and failings, this Nation has made great progress in grasping the chief vision Jesus of Nazareth gave us—the dignity of man.

It is belief in the dignity of man which, through labor disputes, wars and revolutions, has slowly civilized the world. Sometimes its progress has been imperceptible because its path lies in the hearts of men. And while we can measure dollars and cents, it is harder to measure the change in men's hearts.

Moscow's Mistake

Hitler's greatest mistake was that he denied the dignity of man, and this may also be the greatest mistake of the leaders in Moscow. Christ taught that man was the Son of God—the fallen Son of God and so, capable of doing evil, but still the Son of God. Hitler, however, assumed that man was no more than the brightest of the beasts and treated him as such. Hitler operated on the premise that, as in the jungle, might makes right.

The leaders of Moscow have been cleverer than that. They have put forward a propaganda which has convinced many parts of the world they are operating for the benefit of their fellow men. But beneath this veneer of propaganda is the inescapable fact that Moscow operates without any true understanding of the dignity of man.

In Russia might still makes right, life is the cheapest of all commodities and slave-labor camps still flourish.

Our Failure

Herein lies our greatest failure. While we have gradually carried forward Christ's creed in our own Nation, and while we have poured great largess in food and materials into Europe, we have not transmitted with it the basic ideals for which we stand. We have not convinced our European friends that our hearts went along with the handouts. We have not realized that the gift without the giver is bare.

Equally important, we have not transmitted beyond the Iron Curtain any knowledge of the burning, fervent desire existing in this country for peace. We have not used the ingenuity and courage of our forefathers in selling our ideals to the people of the nation which, day-by-day, now looks like our almost certain enemy.

We have been quite willing to pay the money or grow the food, but we have said "let George do it" when it came to disrupting our pleasant way of life and going abroad to sell our ideals. Until we faced dire emergency, many of us were not even willing to come to Washington to serve our Government.

It takes men with both ideals and willingness to risk death to carry our concept of the dignity of man into some parts of Europe. Once that concept gets behind the Iron Curtain, the danger of war vanishes. But we have not realized this. Or, if we have, we have not worked at it hard enough.

While we have worked toward a better world here at home, we have not entirely realized that in this modern day of A-bombs and transatlantic rockets, this is not enough.
